Harmony Reported as 36 Members of New Board Meet to Organize

T. D. KRINN IS SECRETARY

John S. Ritt Retains Post as Treasurer; 45 in Executive Group

Lawrence E. Goeller, Beverlyrd, a member of the Pickaway-co Democratic executive committee for the last several years, became its chairman Thursday evening when 36 members of the new committee met in American Hotel headquarters.

Mr. Goeller was chosen without opposition in a meeting marked by harmony and good feeling. Two other Democrats, George G. Adkins and W. E. Weiler, nominated at the central committee meeting a week ago, declined to enter the race to provide a clear field for Mr. Goeller. Mr. Adkins retires as chairman, after serving two years.

Two "old line" party leaders, Thomas D. Krinn and John S. Ritt, were re-elected secretary and treasurer, respectively, positions they have filled efficiently for several years. Mr. Adkins made a short talk in retiring from the office, in which he thanked members of the committee for their co-operation and support. Mr. Goeller then made an acceptance talk in which he called on every member of the committee for complete co-operation.

The complete committee includes J. F. Mader, C. E. Helvering who is chairman of the central committee, W. E. Weiler, Frank Marion Jr., Charles Miller, Harry Bartholomew, John Himrod, Harry Hitchcock, Mr. Ritt, Mr. Goeller, Harry Moore, E. S. Neuding, L. J. CURB MONOPOLY, PRESIDENT CRIES

Nation of Homes Urged in Address in Dallas, Texas

DALLAS, Tex., June 12—(UP)—President Roosevelt today bluntly warned that unless monopoly was curbed, the United States faced the prospect of becoming a nation of boarding houses instead of a nation of homes.

The chief executive attacked concentrated wealth, and pledged protection to small business and labor.

"The net result of monopoly, the net result of economic and financial control in the hands of the few, has meant ownership of labor as a commodity," he said. "If labor is to be a commodity in the United States, in the final analysis it means we shall become a nation of boarding houses instead of a nation of homes."

"If our people ever submit to that, they will have said 'goodbye' to their historic freedom. Men do not fight for boarding houses. They will fight for their homes."

Mr. Roosevelt, addressing cheering thousands at the Cotton Bowl stadium, made a vigorous bid for continued liberal political support. The president arrived by special train early today to visit the Texas centennial exposition.

HUSBAND JAILED AFTER DEATH OF YOUTHFUL WIFE

YUKON, Okla., June 12—(UP)—Irene Williams, 14-year-old wife of Frank Williams, 25, was stabbed to death at a farm house near here today.

Williams was arrested a few minutes later. Constable John Alden said he admitted slaying his wife.

"She wouldn't live with me and I made up my mind she wouldn't live with anyone," Alden quoted Williams.

"I'm sorry I killed her," he added. "I'm ready to take my medicine."

HUSBAND FILES ACTION AGAINST HIS WIFE'S WILL

Suit to set aside the will of his wife, Sue, was filed in common pleas court Thursday afternoon by J. C. Anderson, 90, Jackson-twp, through his guardian, Attorney E. A. Smith, against Byron Martin, residing near East Ringgold.

The plaintiff says he is in possession of 142 acres of land in Walnut-twp. His wife died Aug. 25, 1931 and the will was not filed for probate until April 11, 1936. The petition asks the will be set aside on the contention it was not filed during the three-year period provided by law. Anderson and Martin were legatees under the will.

Peach Crop, Other Fruit In Ohio Lost

Scarcity Expected Result of Cold Spring and Lack of Rain in May

A scarcity of fruit this summer in Pickaway-co and throughout Ohio was predicted today as a result of the severe winter and lack of rain this spring.

The Pickaway-co Farm Bureau reported that fruit trees have been damaged to a considerable extent. The federal-state crop reporting service is responsible for the survey of Ohio which found a scarcity certain.

Abnormally cool weather during May and rainfall which measured only 2.39 inches as compared to a normal precipitation of 3.69 inches, were blamed for the damage to fruit in the state. Other agricultural commodities suffered, too, the federal survey showed, but not so severely.

Peach Crop Gone

The crop report said there would be no peach crop in Ohio this year with the exception of a few scattered counties along Lake Erie. The indication was the crop's maximum would be 168,000 bushels as compared with a five-year average production of 1,089,000 bushels. A large number of peach trees were killed by the severe winter, with the greatest loss among older trees.

The apple and cherry crops also will be exceptionally light. The apple crop was expected to be but 26 per cent normal and the cherry crop 18 per cent.

All sweet varieties of cherries were killed. The crop forecast was

TWO NAVY MEN DIE IN CRASH

Airplane Falls Into Atlantic in Cuban Bay

WASHINGTON, June 12—(UP)—A navy airplane launched from the cruiser Memphis crashed into the sea near Guantanamo bay, Cuba, yesterday, killing a naval officer and a seaman, the navy department was advised today.

The dead: Lieut. R. W. Larson, 33, of Omaha, Neb., and aviation machinist mate, 1st class, Sydney L. Harris, 31, of Brunswick, Ga. Larson is survived by his widow who lives in the Canal Zone. Harris' widow, Mrs. Viola Pague Harris, lives in Concord, N. H.

Navy officials said cause of the accident had not been determined. A board of inquiry has been appointed to investigate.

GAMER KNOWS G. O. P. CHOICE MAN OF ACTION

"Landon is a man of very few words. He's not a speaker—he does all his speaking with actions."

Anton Gamer, Circleville dry cleaner, made that statement Friday morning, and he should know. Mr. Gamer has been a friend of the Landon family for many years.

Mr. Gamer's late wife, who was a former principal at the Washington-twp school, was a niece of Mr. Landon. She was tutor for his daughter, Peggy, when she was a child. Mrs. Gamer died in Kansas several weeks ago.

Before coming to Ohio in 1922, Mr. Gamer was in business in Parsons, Kas., for 22 years. Gov. Landon lived at Independence, Kas., about 30 miles from Parsons.

Mr. Gamer said his last visit with Gov. Landon was last August when they attended a dinner together in Parsons.

Three Courses Remain Open for Idaho Man as Platform is Approved

WASHINGTON, June 12—(UP)—Gov. Alf Landon's gold standard platform demands brought from Sen. William E. Borah today the comment:

"What does he mean by that?"

Borah, returning to the capital from the scene of bitter convention battles over context of the platform, did not immediately announce what effect the last minute Landon changes would have on his campaign support.

"I've made up my mind, all right," said the Idaho lion as he got off the Cleveland pullman, "but I'm not ready to make a statement just now."

His jaw was firmly set, his sentences crisp as he was greeted at the station with news of the eleventh-hour platform skirmish engineered by Landon which had the effect of bringing into the party declaration of principles two of the ideas which Borah has strenuously opposed. Namely:

1. Currency linked to gold.
2. A constitutional amendment for labor.

Ideas Qualified

True, both ideas were coppered with qualifications. Gold-backed currency only when it could be accomplished without damaging agricultural producers; and the constitutional amendment only if the assumption that the constitu-

Sometime today the presses at the bureau of engraving and printing will run off the thirty seven millionth adjusted service bond. This number will be sufficient, treasury experts believed, to pay all bonus claims. The first bond was printed on Feb. 26.

The bonus issue is the largest single printing of bonds ever carried out in the United States. The largest previous single issue was for the Fourth Liberty loan when 35,833,000 individual bonds were printed.

CONVENTION NOMINATES CHICAGO MAN WITHOUT OPPOSITION WHEN VANDENBERG REFUSES TO ACCEPT

Efforts of John Hamilton to Induce Michigan Senator to Take Position to No Avail; Session Closes at 1:14 p. m. Friday

Kansas Governor Selected Unanimously Late Thursday With His Earlier Opponents Seconding Address of Campaign Boss

PUBLIC HALL, CLEVELAND, June 12—(UP)—Colonel Frank Knox, Chicago publisher, today was nominated as Governor Alf M. Landon's running-mate as the Republican national convention neared its close.

Colonel Knox, who joined Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan, Senator William Borah of Idaho, Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa, and Robert Taft of Ohio, son of the former president, in stepping aside to make way for the Kansas presidential candidate, was chosen unanimously for vice president after a number of other nominees withdrew.

The Chicagoan received all the votes of the convention, 1,003.

Vandenberg Not Nominated

The name of Senator Vandenberg was not put into nomination at this afternoon's session although it was reported John D. M. Hamilton, Landon's campaign manager, went to his hotel Friday morning to try to persuade him to accept the nomination. Vandenberg was firm in his decision to decline.

Hamilton, after a half hour's conference in Vandenberg's suite, left refusing to comment. Vandenberg's son announced his father would make no statement.

Hamilton left the hotel accompanied by Sens. W. Warren Barbour of New Jersey and John Townsend of Delaware.

Vandenberg did not attend today's session of the convention.

There were reports in convention hall that the Landon strategy would be to nominate Vandenberg for vice president and put him in the position of being drafted. However, this was not done.

Colonel Knox was not in the hall when he was nominated.

Minor business comprised the remainder of the convention prior to adjournment at 1:14 p. m.

PUBLIC HALL, CLEVELAND, June 12—(UP)—Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, new prairie state leader and presidential nominee of the Republican party, charged with the entire G. O. P. behind him today in attack on the New Deal. The party, united for the first time since 1932, searched for a vice presidential nominee.

Landon was nominated unanimously last night. He was voted into supreme party command after a bold telegraphic warning to the Republican national convention that he had ideas beyond its platform and would not hesitate to make them effective.

Party unity is threatened only by the possibility of a bolt by Sen. William E. Borah.

Many Are Available

The next order of business is nomination of a vice presidential candidate. Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg has refused that honor. A draft-Vandenberg movement is under way. Frank Knox of Illinois is available as are Sen. L. J. Dickinson of Iowa, Robert A. Taft of Ohio, James W. Wadsworth of New York and Sen. Frederick Steiwer of Oregon.

This convention may log-jam their vice presidential stream and blast out of trouble with a new and unexpected name. Anything may happen here today. Delegates had no intention of remaining over another night although Cleveland has been hospitable and the weather fairly pleasant. The delegate bank rolls are depleted and it's home-going day in the Republican national convention.

A vice presidential huddle of Landon leaders broke up at 3:20 a. m., today. Hamilton said no decision on a nominee had been reached.

He said he would telephone Landon today and hold another conference at 9:30 a. m. He said the phone call would be the first instance in which Landon's vice presidential opinion had been sought.

"This convention will adjourn tomorrow," he said. "We are not going to hold it over. A decision will be reached today."

Former Sen. Hiram Bingham and Rep. Joseph Martin, Jr., Mass., met with Hamilton and representatives of most of the larger states. They went over all presidential possibilities. Word came from several conferees that Vandenberg and Knox were first choices but Bingham said he had discussed the

POTATO PRICES REMAIN HIGH IN CIRCLEVILLE

King Spud remained on his high price throne Friday.

Those who purchased potatoes last Saturday found the price of the new crop ranging around $1 a peck. Three grocers, checked at noon Friday, gave prices for the new crop at $1.05, 89 cents and 75 cents per peck. Prices for the old crop were quoted at 73 cents, 69 cents and 65 cents.

Drought during the growing season was blamed for a shortage and the price jump. Last year at this time the prices ranged from 15 to 25 cents per peck.

CONVENTION NOMINATES CHICAGO MAN WITHOUT OPPOSITION WHEN VANDENBERG REFUSES TO ACCEPT

matter with Vandenberg and was convinced he would not accept.

Up to Delegates

"We will give the delegates a free hand if they want it," Hamilton said. "We are not going to dictate."

The conferees shucked geographical considerations to go far in all directions in search of a nominee. They practically called the roll of house and senate Republicans without coming to agreement. Almost every area had a favorite son. Conferees said there was no discussion of naming a Democrat for the vice presidency.

Landon's nomination was light ratified the unofficial polls, the political surveys, the opinions of experts who have been writing for many weeks that this governor of a typical prairie state was so far ahead of the field that he was not likely to be headed. A parade of defeated men passed review last night before the convention crowd in acknowledgement that the survey, polls and experts were correct. Vandenberg, Knox, Dickinson and Taft, all favorite sons or better in the six months derby that thundered to a finish in the convention here, stepped up and put their noses in the microphones to tell the world that they were for Landon now.

Vandenberg summoned the Republican host to elect Landon and stop Roosevelt.

Dickinson lapped the New Deal and reported that Iowa seconded the nomination of Alf Landon.

Supported by Knox

Knox applauded Landon for the courage and sincerity of his telegraphic amendment of the party platform and pledged all his ability to the election of Landon to the presidency.

Taft put Ohio on the Kansas bandwagon. And then these men stepped into the shadows. The Landon show was on.

But there were shouts for Borah. The old man from Idaho put his impress on the convention. He came to town roaring and for three days he has been snapping the lash around ducking heads of platform committeemen. Some on the floor and some in the galleries joined last night in the last demonstration ever likely to center around the senior senator from Idaho as a presidential possibility. He is 71 years old. It was a simple demonstration limited to just three or four words, "We want Borah. Where is Borah?"

There was none to answer and the moment for Borah's appearance before a Republican national convention in the role of candidate or president maker probably passed forever.

All through these ceremonies and before the delegates had been clamoring for the nomination. They wanted quick action. But the rules were there to be obeyed and they had required a preliminary roll call of the states in which each in alphabetical order be given an opportunity to place a man or woman before the convention for nomination to the presidency.

TESTIMONY IS COMPLETED IN REICHELDERFER CASE

All testimony had been submitted in common pleas court Thursday afternoon in the suit of Myrtle and Arnold Reichelderfer, Tarlton, against T. B. Wolf and others. Arguments and briefs will be submitted to Judge J. W. Adkins next Thursday.

The suit asks an injunction against collection of a $2,000 judgment on a note. The plaintiffs contend the note is a forgery.

Unseats Brown

FRANK F. TAGGART, above, wealthy coal operator of Massillon, Ohio, is the new national committeeman for the Buckeye state, having defeated Walter F. Brown of Toledo for the position. Brown was postmaster general in the Hoover administration.

for 1,150 tons as compared with 4,260 tons a year ago.

The estimated pear crop was set at 196,000 bushels as compared with a five year average of 345,000 bushels.

The estimated June 1 crops of winter wheat, Ohio rye, oats, spring wheat, barley, tame hay, clover and timothy were all under their averages for the past 10 years.

The winter wheat crop was set at 32,658,000 bushels as compared with 42,343,000 bushels in 1935.

Hay Benefitted

Early May rains benefited the growth of hay in pastures of the state and although the precipitation for the remainder of the month was insufficient to sustain the growth, the June 7 outlook was for a crop 80 per cent normal, one point above the 10 year average.

Poor seed and insufficient moisture took a heavy toll on corn. The combination caused many farmers to re-plant either portions of their crop or to re-seed entire fields.

ARABS CONTINUE TO SPREAD FEAR OVER HOLY LAND

JERUSALEM, June 12—(UP)—Assistant Police Superintendent Alan Sigrist was wounded from ambush late today while driving his automobile near Herod's Gate as Arab disorders continued in Palestine.

Sigrist lost control of his car, which plunged down a 30-foot embankment.

British constable Doxat, who was a passenger in Sigrist's automobile, jumped clear. He shot and captured one of the assailants.

Earlier 17 persons were reported wounded when a military escort returned the fire of Arabs who attacked the Haifa-Jerusalem train. Eighteen Jews were taken to hospital at Tel-Aviv after a train was bombed as it left Kalkileh.

BOY, 14, MISSING SINCE TUESDAY; SEARCH STARTS

The sheriff's department was searching Friday for Junior Chaffin, 14, Circleville high school student and stepson of Joseph W. Speakman, Wayne-twp, who has been missing since Tuesday.

Speakman said the youth left the house about 6 a. m. and said he was going to find work. He thought he planned to seek farm work in the immediate neighborhood but when he had not returned Thursday he notified county officers.

Speakman said the last report he had received of the youth was from a relative in Richmondale, Ross-co. He stopped there Wednesday.

The boy was a freshman in Circleville high school during the last term. He is 5 feet, 4 inches tall, weighs 135 pounds, has a fair complexion, brown eyes and hair, and was wearing overalls, a blue shirt and black oxfords when he left his home.

tion already permits protection for working women and children is erroneous.

But nevertheless they are definitely opposed to the philosophy Borah fathered from the time he arrived in Cleveland and decided to relinquish his nomination aspirations but retain a finger in drafting the party platform.

There appeared three courses remaining open for Borah. He can accept the last minute changes gracefully, support Landon and forget the intra-party differences; he can bolt the party; or he can adopt a middle-of-the-road stand, giving Landon neither his support nor his opposition.

May Follow Middle

One friend of the senator, who saw his reception of the platform news, predicted it would be the middle-of-the-road course that Borah will pursue.

Borah was alone as he swung down from the pullman. He looked tired. His sombre double-breasted brown suit was unbuttoned. His face was dabbed with powder after a hasty shave on the train.

JOHN HAMILTON TO GIVE FARLEY DIFFICULT TASK

Topeka Attorney Promises
Bitter Fight in Fall;
Angered By Klan

CLEVELAND, June 12.—(UP)—A square-jawed, determined Topeka, Kas., attorney, who still is in politics because certain opponents made him mad 15 years ago, set out today to return the Republican party to national power.

He is red-haired, blue-eyed John Daniel Miller Hamilton, 44, presidential campaign manager for Kansas' Gov. Alfred Mossman Landon.

Opposition aplenty will James A. Farley, Democratic master strategist, find in John Hamilton. A clever maneuverer, Hamilton will be expected to match the postmaster general's every move. Hamilton's first job ended last night when his candidate was nominated by acclamation. His second—a five-month campaign to beat Gov. Landon in the White House—began today.

Notice is Served
The nomination campaign—climaxed by the last 10 days of deft maneuvers here—served notice on President Roosevelt's manager what kind of battle he may expect from the Republicans.

Hamilton's temperament and ability were shown clearly at his twice-daily press conference during the time he had his camp established here.

Smiling quickly and just as quickly becoming solemn, Hamilton was subjected to many barages of questions after his triumph.

To most he had an answer of some sort; to some he was evasive; and to others he snapped with spontaneous anger "no answer necessary."

Of athletic build, Hamilton preferred to sit atop a modernistic table at press conferences, than in an overstuffed chair.

His feet dangled, he looked toward the floor as a correspondent phrased a question to trip him into admission of the latest "deal."

It didn't take John Hamilton long to flash back his answer. He raised his head, looked straight at his questioner and fired away, seldom gesturing with his reply.

Arriving here 10 days ago with only better than average support, Hamilton wound up last night with Landon's name the only one offered to the convention for the nomination.

He once was on the opposite side of the Kansas Republican fence from the man for whom he has won the highest honor the party can bestow.

Landon managed a gubernatorial campaign for Clyde A. Reed. Hamilton directed the opposition camp. Landon won and soon afterward the two joined forces. It was Landon who was responsible for Hamilton's election as national committeeman in 1932.

The political manager is Iowa-born, attended Phillips academy at Andover, Mass., and finished his law course at Northwestern university, Chicago. His present law partner, Ralph T. O'Neill, is a Democrat.

He has held office as a county judge and as a member of the state legislature where he was speaker of the house.

Threatened By Klan
It was during his term as county judge 15 years ago that Hamilton was about to quit politics and devote his time to private practice. A delegation called on him and threatened that if he did not join the Ku Klux Klan he would never again hold public office.

The ultimatum made him so mad that he decided to stay in politics

Hamilton is married, the father of a boy and girl.

Miss Elma Worley, Wilmington, has presented her resignation to the New Holland school board to accept a position at the Clarksville high school, near Wilmington.

The New Holland board will meet in the near future to fill the vacancy.

SCITO-TWP SCHOOL REJECTS 6-6 PROGRAM

Commercial Point school will operate during the 1936-37 term on the six-to-two-four plan instead of the six-six plan.

John G. Barton, superintendent, explained the school is not adequately arranged for the six-six plan and it is inconvenient for the seventh and eighth grade pupils to change classes every 45 minutes.

The six-six plan was used in the school four years.

Under the new plan the elementary school, seventh and eighth grades and high school will operate as three units. The seventh and eighth grades will be departmentalized. Kenneth Bobb will teach English, spelling, hygiene and geography.

Russell Snavely from Otterbein College, Westerville, will be principal and instructor in mathematics and physical education. Hackney served as principal last year.

CHURCH TO GET VALUED LETTERS

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—One of the finest and most valuable collections of manuscripts, autographs and relics pertaining to the Unitarian Church in America, gathered by George E. Nitzsche, records of the University of Pennsylvania, will be given to the Meadville Seminary soon.

The collection, gathered over a period of 20 years, is valued at thousands of dollars. A large part of it was made possible through the interest and donations of Cyrus H. K. Curtis.

Included in the collection are more than 800 signatures and manuscript besides many letters and manuscripts of Unitarian Presidents of the United States, letters, manuscripts, autographs and relics of great American poets, scientists, statesmen, lawyers and business leaders who followed the Unitarian faith.

Jefferson Letters Included
"My collection includes autograph letters from Presidents John Adams, John Quincy Adams, Thomas Jefferson, Fillmore and Taft; poets and literary personalities such as Bryant, Longfellow, Emerson, Dickens and the Alcotts; historians such as Motley and Prescott; scientists such as Darwin, Wedgwood, Steinmetz and Priestley, and many other great ministers, authors, educators, lawyers, doctors, abolitionists and industrialists," said Nitzsche.

One of the most prized autographs of Benjamin Franklin ever found is also in the collection. It is displayed on a fragment of old paper where an unusual death drawing is in the right hand corner.

In boyish handwriting the note reads: "I O U one pound, Benjamin Franklin." On the reverse

LANDON CONTROLS NATIONAL REPUBLICAN PARTY

LEADERS CLAIM CONFLICT WITH BORAH ASSURED

Telegram Read By His Chief Aide Has Much to Do With Final Platform

CLEVELAND, June 12.—(UP)—Gov. Alf M. Landon sent the challenge of his personal leadership echoing across the nation today by a bold and politically potent intervention in building the platform on which he seeks the presidency.

The new Republican leader spurred a burst of party enthusiasm for his courage—and speculation on the political wisdom of his maneuver—when by remote control from Topeka he prefaced his nomination by going beyond the platform to favor a constitutional amendment on hours and wages for women and children if necessary; a potential future return to the gold standard and a drastic policy on removal of government jobs from politics.

He revived, too, the long shadow of a party conflict with Sen. William E. Borah, which leaders believed they had removed in the last hectic hours of platform building. The Landon declarations on gold and a constitutional amendment conflicted with Borah's strongly expressed views and may yet send the Idahoan on a walk.

Frankness Pleases

Some veterans of the party expressed in private their wish that the Kansan could have stood on the platform as passed by the convention, but they declared unanimously their admiration for his frankness, courage and leadership. The latitude of his statement in affecting interests of both east and west equally appeared to have taken the sting from the nominee's disagreement with the resolutions committee's decisions. There was both political drama and surprise in disclosure to the convention of Landon's challenge of the decision of party leaders not to accept all of his platform proposals.

Red-headed young John D. M. Hamilton, the Kansan's manager, strode out on the long tongue of the speakers' platform to nominate the sunflower state's candidate. A white glare of spotlights beat down on him as he stood tall and broad-shouldered and spoke in a ringing voice.

But it was Landon's words that the multitude heard. Hamilton began by reading a telegram from the man about to be nominated as the party's hope of driving the New Deal from power.

1. The Kansas governor hoped that the convention was correct in its belief that states could enact wage and hour laws and abolish sweatshops under the constitution. But he could not be satisfied with a hope. In spite of the resolutions committee rejection of the proposal, Landon informed the convention that he favored, if necessary, a constitutional amendment to achieve that objective.

2. The governor also agreed with the platform plank calling for a sound currency at all hazards by means of a balanced budget. But there, too, he said, he must explain his personal belief that "the second requisite" is a currency expressed in terms of gold and convertible into gold. That, he added, did not mean an immediate return to the gold standard, but it did mean a return when it could be done without penalizing the nation's economy or injuring farmers or producers of other raw materials. The convention had rejected reference to the gold standard in the platform.

For Merit System

3. In the third place, Landon's telegram said, he would go beyond the platform's proposal on the merit system. "I believe," he said, "that there should be included within the merit system every position in the administrative service below the rank of assistant secretaries of major departments and agencies and that this inclusion should cover the entire post office department." Thus he expressed to the convention his specific terms for a drastic elimination of politics from federal jobs—especially the patronage-dealing post office department—although the resolutions committee had refused to go that far.

Thus the nominee stepped in where more experienced party leaders had feared to tread. He courted the resentment of eastern leaders who had insisted that the words "constitutional amendment"

LIBERIA OFFERS NEW DESTROYER NEGROES HAVEN OF GERM FOUND

MONROVIA, Liberia (UP)—Liberia definitely favors the repatriation of Negroes from the United States, according to a statement made here by President Edwin Barclay. The republic's established principle is that it shall always be an asylum for those of African descent.

The statement came as a result of many inquiries received by President Barclay and the American Minister here, after the Virginia legislature recently memorialized the United States congress to permit the colonization of 400,000 American Negroes who had petitioned President Roosevelt for government assistance in migrating to Liberia.

President Barclay said he had received an inquiry from a large Negro organization of Chicago's South Side, whose aim is "to return people of African descent to their motherland, Africa." Mrs. M. M. L. Gordon, president of this organization, asked President Barclay whether published reports were true that he is not in sympathy with the proposed wholesale influx of Negroes.

He denied this report and said the only persons not desired in Liberia were opportunists and political agitators. Since Liberia is self-governing, he said, he would be compelled to take a definite position regarding the coming of organized groups having as their object the making of the country as a base for international antagonisms.

The type of Negroes that are welcome in Liberia, said President Barclay, are skilled artisans, trained agriculturists, business men with capital, and young physicians willing to go into the interior and develop the aborigines. He advised that all prospective immigrants communicate with the Liberian government before making final arrangements for sailing.

should not be mentioned because it was on the constitutional issue that the party should base its fight against the Roosevelt administration. But the respondent, if any, appeared mild.

He dared also the objections of westerners who had demanded that there should be no mention of "gold standard" in the platform. On the third issue, Landon ignored what some political advisers had considered unwise policy.

They pointed out that great political importance was involved that there was a possibility that the administration in power might take advantage of the proposal by putting the merit system into effect and thus consolidating their hold on the political affairs of the nation.

But for every politico who shook his head uncertainly at the mention of the Landon declarations, there was another—and sometimes two—who pointed with pride.

LAKE EXHIBITS START JUNE 27

CLEVELAND (UP)—Transforming three miles of lake front here from a mass of lumber piles, unfinished buildings and dusty temporary roadways into the Great Lakes Exposition in less than three weeks is the task facing Albert N. Gonsior, construction engineer of the exposition.

Gonsior, surveying today the 10-acre exposition area from his office on the 22nd floor of the Terminal Tower Building, said that the gates of his $2,600,000 construction project would be open to visitors on June 27, official opening date.

Besides the buildings now under construction the exposition will utilize $25,000,000 more of permanent buildings belonging to the city. This group includes Public Hall, scene of the Republican National Convention, Cleveland Stadium, with a seating capacity of 76,000, and Cleveland Public Library.

Hues To Blend

With construction of new buildings nearing completion, the next biggest task is painting the harmonious hues of white, broken with dashes of red and blue. All architecture in the exposition, except that of several foreign villages, will be of the modernistic type advocated by Otto Teegan, color and architecture consultant of the exposition.

Three miniature light-houses are being built on the edge of Lake Erie to aid in the docking of lake steamers and seaplanes at night. A landing field for blimps and autogyros is under construction.

Roads Are Dustless

Within the exposition grounds the building of 15 miles of roadway is being retarded so that it will not be ruined by heavy construction traffic. When construction is finished on a certain section, Gonsior has equipment and men to lay 376 tons of asphalt, or 2 1/2 miles of roadway a day. All exposition roads are dustless asphaltic macadam.

Three weeks ago the exposition site was barren of all plant life, shrubs and trees; today over 400

FINDS ALL-BRAN BETTER THAN PILLS, SALTS, AND OILS

This Natural Food Relieved His Constipation*

We quote from his letter: "... So I decided to make a fair trial (of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN), with the result that I felt much improved. I have quit all laxatives since 1929.

"For 34 years, I had to take pills, salts, oils, teas, or other fluids, which did more harm than good. ALL-BRAN now is our breakfast cereal for the whole family."—Mr. Martin Wroblewski, 201 Church Street, Highland Park, Mich.

Meals low in "bulk" often lead to constipation. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides generous "bulk" in effective form. This "bulk" absorbs moisture, forms a soft mass, and gently exercises and cleanses the system. ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B and iron.

Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. How much better to use this natural food in place of patent medicines.

Use as a cereal with milk or cream, or in cooking. ALL-BRAN is much more effective than part-bran products. It is sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

*Constipation due to insufficient "bulk" in meals.

OHIO TO DIVIDE ITS VOTING FOR VICE PRESIDENT

Brown Says Knox to Get 47;
Michigan Man to Receive
Much Support

CLEVELAND, June 12—(UP)—How the Ohio delegation will vote today when the Republican national convention chooses a vice presidential candidate probably will depend on developments immediately preceding the convention session.

No formal caucus is planned, according to Ed. D. Schorr, chairman of the Buckeye delegation. He said he did not think a caucus would be necessary for the delegation to reach some decision before the balloting.

Clarence J. Brown of Blanchester manager for Frank Knox, Chicago publisher, predicted after the presidential nomination of Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas that Knox would have 47 Ohio votes for vice president.

Vandenberg Strong
Others of the Ohio delegation were of the opinion that Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan stood a good chance of winning the majority of the Ohio votes. Despite the fact that five of the 52 Ohio delegates were pledged to the candidacy of Sen. William E. Borah of Idaho, the state voted unanimously for Landon's nomination last night.

Judge Walter Wamamaker of Akron, for the Borah group, had said before the session that all five Borah delegates would vote as pledged. Later he said, the five delegates had decided to "go along with" Landon to save Borah from embarrassment.

Popular Ohio Choice
Robert A. Taft of Cincinnati, who was Ohio's "favorite son" candidate for the nomination, told the convention last night that Gov. Landon would have been Ohio's popular choice for the nomination had the Kansas governor permitted his name to be used in the Ohio primary.

Taft made the last speech, seconding the nomination of Landon. "Had Gov. Landon permitted the use of his name in the Ohio primary, he would have swept Ohio as he swept so many other states," Taft said. "His popularity is not sectional. It extends throughout every state in the United States."

"Last night Herbert Hoover called on this convention to lead the attack to regain the citadels of liberty. In Governor Landon we find the ideal captain to lead that attack."

"He is an uncompromising foe of the new deal administration. In Governor Landon we will find a president willing to face unpleasant truths and to tell the people they cannot enjoy socialistic experiments without paying for them in increased taxation and a reduced standard of living."

Republican Platform Summary

Peggy Ann Landon—a Spectator

SEATED on the stage behind the speakers' platform in the Cleveland Public Auditorium, Peggy Ann Landon, 19-year-old daughter of Gov. Alfred M. Landon of Kansas, is an interested spectator at the Republican national convention. Miss Landon says she's having a "wonderful" time.

CLEVELAND, June 12—(UP)—The Republican platform as accepted by the national convention of the party.

Preamble

A declaration that "America is in peril" and an invitation to citizens of all parties to join with the Republican party in driving out the New Deal. A recital of a series of charges that the Democratic administration is infringing on personal liberties, endangered the American system of government and bred fear in commerce and industry.

Constitutional Government

A pledge to maintain the constitution and the system of local self-government and the American system of free enterprise.

Reemployment

Advocates removal of restrictions on production; withdrawal of government competition with private payrolls; encouragement of legitimate business.

Relief

Return of responsibility for relief administration to non-political local agencies; federal aid grants to states with a fair total of administrative officials by merit; limitation of public works to their merits; a prompt determination of facts concerning relief and unemployment.

Security

Advocates a pay-as-you-go policy, with each generation responsible for determining and providing "just and adequate support" for the aged; a minimum income for every citizen over 65; a graduated federal contribution in proportion to state security funds up to a fixed minimum; a direct tax widely distributed to pay for the program.

Labor

A pledge for protection of the right to organize and bargain collectively through representatives of laborers own choosing; prevention of autocratic influence of federal job holders over labor; support for adoption of state laws and interstate compacts to abolish sweatshops and child labor, and to protect women and children with respect to maximum hours, minimum wages and working conditions.

The plank said it was believed "this can be done within the Constitution as it now stands."

Agriculture

Facilitation of economical production and increased consumption on a basis of abundance instead of scarcity; a national land-use program for acquiring nonproductive farms with state approval; a program for a balance between soil-building and soil-depleting crops to insure productivity with reasonable benefit payments to co-operating farmers on family-type farms, but so regulated as to eliminate "the New Deal's destructive policy towards the dairy and livestock industries;" extension of experimental aid to farmers; promotion of industrial use of farm products; protect the American farmer against foreign products; effective quarantine against imported livestock, dairy and other farm products from countries which do not impose health and sanitary regulations fully equal to the United States; a series of provisions for farm credits and decentralizations and non-partisan control of the farm credit administration; governmental aid in disposal of exportable surpluses.

inadequate "the New Deal's destructive policy towards the dairy and livestock industries;" extension of experimental aid to farmers; promotion of industrial use of farm products; protect the American farmer against foreign products; effective quarantine against imported livestock, dairy and other farm products from countries which do not impose health and sanitary regulations fully equal to the United States; a series of provisions for farm credits and decentralizations and non-partisan control of the farm credit administration; governmental aid in disposal of exportable surpluses.

Tariff

Repeal of the New Deal reciprocal trade agreement law; restoration of the flexible trade principle to protect farmers and wage earners from foreign competition; tariff adjustments to promote international trade.

Monopolies

A pledge for vigorous enforcement of criminal and civil laws against monopolies and trusts and their officials, and enactment of such additional legislation as necessary to prevent monopoly.

Regulation of Business

Recognition of a field "within which governmental regulation is desirable and salutary." The authority to regulate should rest in an independent tribunal acting under specific law, with decisions subject to court review. Federal regulation of marketing of securities and of interstate public utility concerns.

Civil Service

A pledge "to the merit system" which should be restored, improved and extended.

Government Finance

A pledge to "stop the folly of uncontrolled spending;" balance the budget by cutting expenditures drastically and immediately instead of increasing taxes; revision of the federal tax system in coordination with state and local taxes; use of the taxing power for revenue and not for punitive purposes.

Money and Banking

Advocates a sound currency, to be preserved at all hazards; the first requisite being a balanced budget; opposes further devaluation of the dollar; would restore to congress the power to change the value of the dollar and cooperate with other nations to international stabilization as soon as practicable.

Foreign Affairs

A pledge to promote and maintain peace by all honorable means; opposition to joining the league of nations or the world court or taking part in any entangling alliances; favor international arbitration through free, independent tribunals.

Bill of Rights

A pledge to preserve freedom of religion, speech, press and radio; and the right of assembly and petition and immunity from unreasonable search or seizure.

Additional Pledges

1. Favoring federally-build head-water reservoirs to prevent floods, subject to state approval.
2. Favoring equal opportunity for colored citizens and pledging them protection of their economic status and personal safety.
3. A pledge for Indians to aid amelioration of living conditions.
4. A pledge for adequate compensation and care for veterans, and their widows, orphans and dependents.
5. Use of every effort to collect war debts due the United States.
6. Opposition to legislation discriminating against women in federal and state employment.

An affirmation of "our unalterable conviction" that the fate of the nation will depend on the character and virtue of government, on self-reliance and industry and thrift of the people and their willingness to meet responsibilities. A paragraph of quotation from the first Republican platform of 1856 was included in regard to liberty of conscience and equality of rights and inviting aid of "men of all parties however differing from us in other respects."

The last paragraph was a pledge that the nominees of the party would carry out the platform as "a matter of private honor and public faith."

OPEN LETTERS

TO PROPERTY OWNERS

FOLK: Everything is ready for the inauguration of Circleville's extensive WPA sidewalk program. All details have been ironed out and an agent named to make arrangements with property owners for improvements. You have an opportunity to obtain good, strong sidewalks, curbs and gutters at practically material expense. All labor is supplied by WPA. Dozens of relief men will be provided employment through the program. Their pay flows through every business channel in this city. Cement will be purchased from local dealers at retail prices. Practically every street in this city needs sidewalks and curb improvement. Property owners, you now have a chance to take advantage of real "bargain" offers. You will have an opportunity to make the repairs you desire. It is your civic duty to give the program serious consideration.

CIRCUITEER

TO MAYOR W. J. GRAHAM

DEAR SIR: I noticed you warned Circleville merchants and residents against the sale and explosion of fireworks on the Fourth of July. The regulations you cited are under city ordinances established many years ago, but seldom enforced. Last year five children were treated in Berger hospital for burns suffered from fireworks. If you want a safe and sane Fourth of July in this city see that the regulations you announced are properly enforced. If residents of this city contributed the money they spend annually on fireworks to a general fund Circleville could have a fireworks display and celebration worthwhile. The display could be presented in some field near the city for the enjoyment of everyone, and a man properly trained in the explosion of pyrotechnics would be in charge.

CIRCUITEER

TO BANK DIRECTORS

OFFICIALS: Your selection of George P. Foresman to become president of the First National Bank is a step forward. Mr. Foresman is recognized as one of Circleville's most upright citizens. His election is certain to help the First National bank maintain its reputation as a bulwark among Circleville's financial institutions.

CIRCUITEER

COUNCIL OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

DEAR SIR: Your 69th annual convention, one of the finest ever held, is now history. The program was excellent, but I think a few suggestions can be offered to improve the sessions and increase the crowd. Your convention and the Youth conference lasted practically nine hours. Many who attended the sessions said the programs were too long. Either cut the program shorter or hold the Youth conference on another day. Holding the convention after the county and city schools are dismissed for summer vacation causes a deep cut in attendance. Select an earlier date. Sunday is the proper day for the convention and I think it would be foolish to even consider a change.

CIRCUITEER

TO MAYOR GRAHAM

EXECUTIVE: You made a move this week for which you should be commended. A number of Circleville men, steady customers in your police court, have thought they could go as they pleased without suffering a very heavy penalty. The CIRCUITEER commends you for taking steps to break up the intoxication practice which has been gaining momentum weekly. A rest of from seven to 30 days in the county jail will teach many of these "regulars" that Circleville laws are made to abide by and not break.

CIRCUITEER

TO PATRIOTIC ORDERS

LEADERS: It is a shame that Independence Day, one of the most valued holidays in the national calendar, is not observed in Circleville. Hundreds of cities of Circleville's size, and many larger and smaller, have elaborate programs on this day, winding up the function with a fine display of fireworks late in the evening. Ashville, in recent years, has been the county leader in this respect. A big celebration has been held in the village annually under the Community Club, and each has been successful. Even though Circleville fails to properly observe the Fourth of July, it is gratifying that Ashville is progressive enough to make the day an outstanding one in the year. Something should be done in Circleville.

TO MISS MARY WILDER

LIBRARIAN: Few Circleville persons realized until they read the story in Tuesday's Herald that your library offered so many diversions. Many have used the institution daily for years, probably, without considering just how many different advantages you have to offer. The public library, which in the last two years has been opened to the county, is truly a city within itself. Each resident of the city and county could help himself a great deal by taking advantage of the institution.

CIRCUITEER

TO ORDER OF EASTERN STAR

FRIENDS: The inspection program conducted in Circleville last Friday and Saturday was a success from start to finish. The persons who visited Circleville were gracious, and the hospitality shown by local members of the order was splendid. Circleville seeks gatherings of this sort, and always tries to do its part to make delegates feel at home.

World At A Glance

CLEVELAND, June 12 — The Republicans' campaign policy evidently is to be one of attack on President Roosevelt's way of running things rather a fight for any particular constructive program of their own.

This is assuming that Senator Frederick Steiwer, in his keynote speech at the Cleveland convention, and Representative Bertrand H. Snell, in his address as the convention's permanent chairman, correctly outlined the G. O. P.'s plans. Presumably they did. Convention keynoters and permanent chairmen usually know what they are talking about.

Neither Steiwer nor Snell suggested much as to what the Republicans, if they win, propose to do. Both dwell upon what their party proposes to undo that has been done under the Roosevelt administration.

A DISTINCTION

It was not so much the New Deal that the two G. O. P. spokesmen criticized; it was the Rooseveltian method of doing the dealing.

Steiwer especially said that, at first, he thought rather well of some details of the present White House tenant's general scheme to lift the depression, and supported them.

But when the president began putting his system in operation it turned out, the keynoter charged, to be altogether different from what he, or anyone else except a few brain trusters, had expected.

F. D. R. BLAMED It was Roosevelt personally whom Steiwer and Snell alike blamed for effecting what they described as a very radical change in the American form of government.

To be sure, congress voted to him the authority under which he did it, but congress, as remarked by Steiwer, who admits that he voted for several New Deal measures, had no idea what use he was about to make of the powers it conferred on him. Snell goes so far as to put it that he "seduced the legislative branch by billions in pork barrel patronage."

(Of course, the permanent chairman didn't mean to imply that Steiwer was "seduced". Steiwer Snell meant to refer to as having the chief executive "casts a calculating eye upon the judiciary" — the federal supreme court, which been seduced were members of the Democratic majority on Capitol Hill.)

And now, added the chairman,

has knocked out so much of his legislation as unconstitutional.

A DICTATOR? Anyway, Steiwer and Snell agreed that Roosevelt is a dictator. They appealed to the electorate to get rid of him next November, before he becomes too firmly entrenched ever to dislodge, and let a Republican regime restore to the country the form of government it enjoyed until he landed in office.

This can't exactly be called constructive.

It's destructive of what we have now in order to have again what we had formerly.

TURN BACK? And will we be back where we were originally even if the Republicans do win?

Grant (for the sake of argument) that Roosevelt is a dictator. It doesn't follow, however, that the folk who overthrow him will be able to re-establish just what existed until he dictated them out of it.

To the contrary, "revolutions never go backward". So it would be interesting to know what the Republicans plan in the way of reconstruction after they get through with the destructive part of their job — supposing that they succeed at it.

READ THIS FIRST:

Joan Spencer, a small town school teacher, recently disappointed in love, is engaged as secretary to Julian Sloane, noted playwright. She begins to enjoy her new life immensely at Sloane's luxurious summer home where she now lives. Sheila True, an actress and close friend of Julian's, is the only disturbing factor. Sheila obviously is jealous of the playwright's pretty secretary. At a house party Joan sits out a dance with Pierre Durand, Sheila's new flame. While playing golf during the same week-end party, Joan rescues Sheila who has overturned in a canoe with Pierre and then suddenly is stunned by a blow on the head as she is about to climb from the lake. While Joan is recuperating from her accident, Alex Garrity, an admirer she had met at Sloane's, tells her that Julian is in love with her. Just as Joan begins to realize she is becoming extremely fond of Julian, he tells her he must go to Europe on business.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER 17

FOR ONE awful moment Joan had thought that Julian was telling her it was all over. She could have a vacation! But, thank heaven, it was only because he was going to Europe.

"But what about the book?" she asked.

"I'll forget about that for a while. I always proceed slowly with books, anyway. The Guild has engaged Gilbert Haggerty to do a play for the coming season but he prefers to make it a collaboration and has asked me to come in on it. He can't get away so I've got to run over to England to work with him."

"Does that mean that 'Mortal on Olympus' won't be finished for this year?" Julian had asked her the day before. "I'll have to put that aside until this is over. In any event you must have a good rest because there will be lots of work for you to do when I get back."

"Still threatening me?" Joan permitted herself that small bit of railway.

"You've no idea what a demon I can be when I'm working seriously. And you are a temptation to me. You are always ready, always at hand to encourage me to work. I hope it won't be a boomerang and I hope you won't regret the bargain you made when you came here."

"I'm sure I won't ever do that," Joan answered readily, having not the slightest idea of what was ahead of her. It was enough for her that she had escaped the deadly monotony that had seemed her destiny.

Joan came downstairs, with every beat of her heart, feeling her still aching head, a few days later and found Julian ready to leave for New York to catch a boat at midnight for London.

"Take good care of yourself. You've had a bad blow, my child."

Get lots of sleep. Don't fall in love with any of the Blakeville boys because I need you. . . .

Julian wanted to tell her not to fall in love with Alex Garrity and she wanted to tell him that she was through falling in love. She wanted to tell him that if he didn't go that very minute, she was quite sure to make a fool of herself and give way to the lump that was rising in her throat. She was afraid that she'd tell him that the next six weeks would be the longest she'd ever had to face.

But he didn't and she didn't. She smiled at him gaily and promised to get lots of sleep, said she would probably be so fat and lazy when he got back that he wouldn't recognize her and held out her hand to him.

"I'll bring you something from London," he said. "What would you like?"

"A duke," she answered solemnly. "If you have any ideas about what you think would be nice for Sheila let me know. I'll send you my address. Sheila always expects me to spend half my time shopping for something different." Well, good-bye, Joan. You might drop me a line."

He was gone and Joan, her toes pointed in, chin in hand and meditative as to how to look down a road that appeared to be very empty. She kicked a few pebbles around and wondered if she were still adept at playing backgammon. She might as well think about that as to try to analyze why she felt badly just because Julian had said that he was going to buy a gift for Sheila.

She entertained herself thinking about a few suggestions for gifts for Sheila. A very small, very sweet and unexpectedly snappish baby alligator would be a nice idea.

"You're a cat!" Joanne Spencer is a cat! Joanne Spencer ought to have her mouth and mind washed with soap!" she sang to herself until she had recovered her naturally happy disposition.

"Sure there isn't anything I can do to help?" she asked for the tenth time that day as she sat posed at the wheel of the Rattlebrain. Her bags were in the back of the dilapidated car.

Mrs. Henderson removed her hand from the car door. "Not a thing, Joan, but thank you for offering. Koko and I will close this place in three weeks. It's never completely closed, you know. Many's the time Mr. Sloane comes up here in the autumn and winter. But we'll be going back to the city in that time because there's plenty to do to get the town house in order."

"I'll write you when I am coming into town then."

"Indeed you will. I want you to select your own rooms but I'm sure you'll like the ones on the third floor. And you won't have to be going over the stairs. There's an elevator."

"What swank! Well, I'm off and thank you again for being so very good to me and going to all that extra trouble. I promise I won't ever get bumped on the head again."

Then Joan proceeded to Blakeville and her sister, Dorothy.

Dorothy was delighted to have

Joan back and Joan was glad to be back in Blakeville. For a little while. The familiar cottage, the broad tree-shaded avenues were restful. The fields turning yellow, the bush beginning to flame with red, all the haunting beauty of Indian summer and early autumn filled her with a sense of beauty and excitement to come.

Between her and her bridge hand — on one of those endless parties arranged by the devoted Louise — there floated exciting imaginary visions of what Julian's winter home would be like. She pictured the two of them working before an open fire.

She'd have to get some evening dresses and she supposed that her camel's hair coat would hardly be urban enough for her requirements. She'd have to get . . .

"Your bid, Joan."

Joan came back from her pleasant contemplation.

"Well, Joan, I'll sure miss you this year. That new teacher is a little snip. And by the way, speaking of snips, Beatrice Winslow takes the cake." Louise was trying to give Joan all the news.

"Do you know her?" Louise asked, surprised.

"I've met her. She was up for a week-end and just try and not meet folks when you come back here for a week-end. Beautiful clothes, and has she a figure, but I don't like the way she treats Win."

"How does she treat him?" Joan asked, instantly up in arms.

"Oh, I don't know. She twists him around her little finger but I do think she's mad about him."

Joan nodded. That was exactly what she had expected and hoped. She knew that Beatrice had twisted him around her little finger to the extent of getting him away from Joan and she had hoped that the girl was mad about him. She wanted Win to have the best. Nevertheless the knowledge didn't make her exactly happy.

"I don't want you to meet any exciting men?" Louise asked with the avidity of her kind.

"One," Joan answered and told her about Alex Garrity.

"He sounds grand but you don't care for him the way you do for Mr. Sloane, do you?"

"I don't care for any of them that way, Louise," Joan answered with dignity.

"Oh, yes, you do. I can tell. You're simply crazy about Sloane and if you don't watch your step, you're going to get hurt. I mean really hurt."

"If you're the kind of a girl who ought to be married to a man you love, have a home and some kids and I don't want you to fall in love with a man who doesn't want to get married."

Joan thought that over a good many times between that day and the day that Mrs. Henderson wrote and asked her if she could come to New York. Julian was expected back at the end of the week.

And thinking it over, she decided to design a plan for living that included Alex Garrity in a leading role.

LADRONES

HERE IS AN amusing hand, given me by a naval officer, lately returned from Guam. A Spanish trader played the South hand one evening in Spain, Marianas islands, referring with much feeling to the defenders as "ladrones". The fact that he was vulnerable did not tend to soothe his feelings, even if he was not doubled, as would have been related in case some player wanted to make a better story of what took place.

♠ J 9 4	♥ J 10 8 3	♦ K Q 7	♣ A 10

Bidding went: South, 1-Spade; North, 3-Spades; South, 4-Hearts; North, 4-Spades, which South wisely let alone.

The opening lead was the 5 of clubs. East's K won on a finesse, and he led back his only heart. The 7 of hearts looked like the top card of a short suit, and again a finesse allowed the K to win.

West's 4 hearts, the 4 hearts in dummy and the fact that South had bid 4 on the suit, marked East with no 5 of hearts was returned and East ruffed, as expected. East had noted that his partner had led the 5 of clubs, and that declarer had played the 4, making it seem as if West had originally held 6 cards of that suit, which would give South only 2 clubs. The number of diamonds held by West was not apparent, but there seemed nothing to do, except to lead the Ace of diamonds, as the setting trick. When East continued with the 2 of diamonds he did not expect to accomplish anything particular. To East's surprise and declarer's disgust, West ruffed.

East ruffed another heart led by his partner. West used his last trump to ruff a diamond return. Then East used his last trump to ruff his partner's last heart. The cards left in the four hands about the table were as shown below.

♠ A J 9 4	♥ 10 9 8	♦ J 8	♣ A
♠ 9 7 6 3	♥ 2	♦ K Q 10 7	♣ Q

♠ 9 7 6 3	♥ 2	♦ K Q 10 7	♣ Q
♠ 9 7 6 3	♥ 2	♦ K Q 10 7	♣ Q

It was as unexpected a result as I have seen in a long while. Of course the sad thing about the whole thing, at least from the declarer's standpoint, was that going up with the Ace of clubs, or with the Ace of hearts, would have given declarer his contract, as normally he held only a single loser in hearts in diamonds and in clubs. No wonder he called the defenders robbers.

DIET AND HEALTH

Changing Habits Depends Upon Individual

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D. WE ADVISE people to change habits very lightly. "You ought to give up golf," "You ought to take more exercise," "You ought to walk an hour a day."

"You ought to get to bed by 10 o'clock." Lightly, because we assume that if these things appear to be sensible, people will be able to do them. Often they are not able to do them at all, no matter how sensible they appear to be. In fact, sudden change of habit may do more harm than good, especially among the elderly and in dietary habits. Emphasis of this is found in a recent report of a group of people who had to change their habits on account of the fact that one limb was amputated.

Study of the after effects of amputations in 196 cases showed that the handicap of a congenitally absent or defective limb is, in man, surprisingly easy to overcome. This is well known in institutions for the crippled. When a limb is lost by amputation in youth, the handicap usually is quickly overcome, and the effect on the nervous system of the injury is not often felt in youth. Amputation which takes place in elderly people, however, when the patient no longer possesses the agility of youth, shows quite different results. The psychic conditions are different, habits have been too long established,

Mental treatment on the part of the surgeon is thus as important as his surgical skill. The New York Academy of Medicine recently had an evening's discussion devoted to old age—its symptoms and the treatment of its disability. In my opinion, the wisest thing which was said there was by a widely known physician who reminded his audience of the familiar therapeutic fact that changing the habits—dietary or otherwise—of old people is a dangerous procedure. "If an old person has acquired any bad habits, better let him keep them. 'A little wine for the stomach's sake,'" he quoted from the Bible (Timothy: 23) "is a valuable thing to keep up if it has been indulged in for some time."

EDITOR'S NOTE: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

HOME-THOUGHTS, FROM ABROAD

O, to be in England Now that April's there, And whoever wakes in England Sees, some morning, unaware, That the lowest boughs and the brushwood sheaf Round the elm-tree bole are in tiny leaf,

While the chaffinch sings on the orchard bough In England—now!

And after April, when May follows, And the whitethroat builds, and all the swallows! Hark, where my blossom'd pear-tree in the hedge

Leans to the field and scatters on the clover Blossoms and dewdrops—at the bent spray's edge— That's the wise thrush; he sings each song twice over,

Lest you should think he never could recapture The first fine careless rapture! And though the fields look rough with hoary dew,

All will be gay when noontide wakes anew The buttercups, the little children's dower— Far brighter than this gaudy melon-flower!

—Robert Browning.

Rader-Heffner Nuptials Read By Rev. Patterson

Improvised Altar of Flowers Adds to
Ceremony

Before an improvised altar of pink and white peonies, hydrangeas and delphinium intermingled with greenery, Miss Mary Rader became the bride of Mr. Thomas Heffner Thursday afternoon.

The ceremony, informal but impressive, was solemnized at the home of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Horn, Jr., 8, Pickaway-st., Rev. F. M. Patterson of the Plain City Presbyterian church officiating.

The bride was charming in a white chiffon princess gown, ankle length, fashioned with a flared skirt and high neck line. The silk lace collar stood high in the back with tiny buttons trimming the bodice to the waist line. The large puff sleeves were long with deep tight cuffs which came to a point over the hands. A three quarter length veil of silk net, cap style, was trimmed with a wreath of orange blossoms at the neck. She carried an arm bouquet of blue delphinium, white plox and sweet peas.

They were unattended. Nuptial music was played by Mrs. Ralph Boggs, preceding the ceremony.

The bride is a daughter of the late Smiley and Essie Riley Rader. She was graduated from Pickaway-twp high school, attended Ohio State university and for the last three years has been teaching in the Washington-twp school.

Mr. Heffner, the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Heffner, Washington-twp, is a graduate of the Washington-twp school and is extensively engaged in farming.

For traveling the bride chose a knit sport costume in egg shell with gaberline coat and accessories to match.

Immediately after the ceremony they left for a short motor trip and on their return will live in their newly-furnished home in Stoutsville.

Relatives and friends attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Heffner, Miss Nettie Rader, Mrs. Cora Hood, Mr. and Mrs. Ward Riley, Columbus; Miss Gladys Rader, Mrs. B. H. Frank Fay to Present Ripley, Irene Bordoni

Fibber and World's Most Truthful Man to Vie for Honors;
Major Bowes' Birthday Sunday

Frank Fay started his guest star policy with one guest last week. This week in his broadcast tonight he will have two—Bob Ripley, the "Believe It or Not" expert, and Irene Bordoni.

The meeting between Fay the Fibber and the Most Truthful Man in the World threatens fireworks of a kind never before heard on the airwaves simply because these two never met before on the same program. It is being quietly rumored along Radio Row that Fay the Fibber deliberately coined his new title, Fay the Fibber, to startle the "Believe It or Not" king when they come to the microphone. It promises to be a battle royal—the Fibber vs. the man who has been called a liar more than anyone else—yet never told one.

Irene Bordoni trouped with Frank in the days when the Palace Theatre was the top rung of the vaudeville ladder and they played in the same bill time after time. In this appearance as a "Frank Fay Calling" guest, in the broadcast over a WJZ-NBC at 7:30 p. m. (EST) she'll sing several of the songs which she made famous.

Bobby Dolan's orchestra has been selected to play the music for these programs.

Bobby Dolan's orchestra has been selected to play the music for these programs.

FLAG DAY MAJOR'S BIRTHDAY

June 14 is Flag Day, it's Major Bowes' birthday and it's also a Sunday which means that the Major won't have much time for a celebration.

Next Sunday night on his birthday the Major will dedicate his Amateur Hour to Oakland, Cal., which is just across the bay from his native San Francisco. Listeners there will have a chance to vote by telephone during the broadcast over a WEA-F-NBC network from 7 to 8 p. m. (EST) and the half hour following. The number is Oakland 1120.

Although it wasn't her birthday, a lonesome girl in Buffalo got a happy surprise last week from the Major. She was Fay Santley, who asked Major Bowes for a chance because she was lonesome for her husband Bill who was traveling in one of the Major's vaudeville units. Now she has won a job for herself.

This week she joins Unit No. 7 which is playing the Oriental Theatre in Chicago the early part of the week and the Hartman Theatre in Columbus, Ohio, starting Friday. The really happy part of the story however is that Bill Santley is a member of this same company.

CLIMATE WAR OPENS

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—To demonstrate that the San Francisco climate is equal to that of Los Angeles, the local tourist bureau is urging the wearing of shorts, sleeveless garments and sandals.

YOUNG MENTAL MARVEL ON RIPLEY'S PROGRAM

A three-year-old mental marvel will be Bob Ripley's live "Believe It or Not" guest in the broadcast Sunday, June 14. The youngster, who can name among other things all the Presidents of the United States with the chief events in their lives, is Mary Ann Mullica, of 3675 Hudson Boulevard, Jersey City New Jersey. Mary Ann will be examined by

Ripley during a microphone interview and answer questions generally considered far beyond the capacity of a three-year-old child.

Besides knowing all about the President, the little Jersey City girl can tell you what the capital of any country in the world is, name the members of the United States Supreme Court, all the kings, queens, dictators and elected officials who rule the world, and is the master of a miscellany of other information, some of which she will demonstrate in the broadcast Sunday night.

Music for this program, to be heard over a WJZ-NBC network at 6:30 p. m. (EST), will be provided by Ozzie Nelson's orchestra with Ozzie and Harriet Hilliard in solos and duets.

TRIAL SCENE STAGED IN ONE MAN'S FAMILY

The setting of One Man's Family will be transferred from the peace and quiet of their San Francisco home to a courtroom for the broadcast on Wednesday, June 17, as the Spencer divorce trial gets under way. This dramatic episode in the weekly chronicle of the Barbour family will be broadcast over a WEA-F-NBC network at 7 p. m. (EST).

Philip Spencer is suing his wife, the former Beth Holly, for divorce, naming Paul Barbour as co-respondent. At one time all the members of the Barbour family expected Paul and Beth to be married but instead she married Philip Spencer. The match turned out unhappily. Beth and Paul renewed their friendship and now their relationship is being dragged through the mud of a divorce action.

Called to the witness stand in this episode is Teddy, Paul's adopted daughter, who is twelve years old. She has been called as a witness against Beth by Philip Spencer and it is on the child's testimony that the outcome of the trial turns.

LEAD IN LEAGUE IN QUESTION AS TWO TEAMS VIE

Circleville Oils and Eagles
Hope for Undisputed
Leadership Tonight

There'll be big doings in softball circles this evening with leadership at stake, and a forfeited game to be argued.

The Circleville Oils and Eagles lodge crews, undefeated in all four games played to date, tangle on the Southern Ohio Electric field at 6:30 o'clock. The opposing pitchers will be Bill Hegele and Eddie Callahan. Both youths have been going well, and both have been afforded splendid support by their teammates.

The forfeited game concerns the Given Oils and Eshelman Feeds. Umpire Cum Robinson gave the Feeds a game a week ago when the Oils refused to play after a compromise decision on a runner. The team managers will meet after tonight's game in the office of President George Hammel to decide the issue. The outcome will have little direct result on the standing since both teams are far behind the leaders.

Thursday's contest became a fiasco when the Pickaway Dairy crew went to town against the Eshelman nine. The score when the Feeds left the field was 22 to 3 in favor of the Dairies.

Byron Eby, Dairy star, hit two home runs in one inning.

DIMAGGIO TAKES LEAD IN BALLOT FOR STAR SQUAD

BOSTON, June 12.—(UP)—Rookie Outfielder Joe DiMaggio of New York Yankees is almost certain of a berth on the American league nine which opposes National league aggregation in the all-star game here July 7.

Latest returns in the nationwide poll of fans for the selection of players today showed the young Italian sensation far ahead of all left fielders in the junior circuit. He also has polled more votes than any other outfielder, even surpassing Earl Averill, centerfielder of the Cleveland Indians.

Whether Manager Mickey Cochrane of the Detroit Tigers will recover in time to lead the American league team is headline No. 1 of officials in charge of the game. Cochrane not only is manager of the team, but is almost a unanimous selection for the all-star catching job. He is in Henry Ford hospital in Detroit suffering from hyperthyroidism.

Worry about the status of Van Lingle Mungo, second choice for a National league hurler, appears at an end with announcement the one man strike of the big right-hander was over and that he would report to the Brooklyn Dodgers in Cincinnati Saturday.

About This And That In Many Sports

Call Pedley Best
BRITISH writers are using the word "greatest" in stories about Eric Pedley, of the United States polo team visiting Hurlingham for a renewal of the international series that started 50 years ago at Newport.

In all the history of the series, the English have won only three times, in 1886, 1902 and 1914, our gauchos taking seven heats in all. . . . victory for the United States in the first game, June 10, makes the visitors a favorite to win the second tussle, June 13. . . . if a third game is necessary, it will be played June 20. . . . on the United States team, besides Pedley, are Capt. Winston Guest, Mike Phipps and Stewart Iglehart. ***

Baker on Job
With Mickey Cochrane in a hospital, custody of the Tiger cage was given to Delmar David Baker, one-time catcher, more recently coach of the club. . . . Baker is an old Sherwood, Ore., boy, a graduate public accountant, who preferred catching baseballs to juggling figures. . . . as manager of the Beaumont, Tex., team, in 1932, he helped to develop Schoolboy Rowe. . . . as evidence of Del's command of the Queen's English, fiery Johnny Allen of the Indians walked out of the pitcher's box to where Del was coaching recently and took a Sunday punch at the Tiger coach. ***

Chief Gets Going
Contributing probably to Cochrane's illness is the fact that Elton Hogsett, Indian pitcher Detroit traded to St. Louis, has been turning in nice games for Rogers Hornsby while the Tiger staff faltered. . . . though Hogsett is a Cherokee, he wears a nickname given to him by Irroquois at Montreal. . . . the moniker is "Rantanastase," which is "strong arm" to you.

Dolph Camilli, first baseman of the Phils, whose name is right up there near the top of the National league batting averages, set an all-time record for striking out last year, whiffing 113 times. . . . You never know who's coming from the bull pen these days when Connie Mack waves his score card. . . . one of the more recent additions to the slab staff is a youth yeelpet Stuart Flythe, from North Carolina State college. ***

Goodman Uses Comb
Amateur Golfer Johnny Goodman, former National Open champion, carries a comb and runs it through his hair after sinking his putt on nearly every hole. . . . Second Baseman Alex Kampouris of Cincinnati is the only Greek in the majors. . . . Cleveland writers whisper that the umpires seem to be ganging up on the team, giving all the close ones the other way. . . . which might have been brought up by the fact that the Indians have been harassing the umpires at every opportunity.

KANSAS CITY BLUES DIVIDE WITH TOLEDO

The Kansas City Blues could do no better than break even with the Toledo Mud Hens yesterday, while two other western American association teams were losing to eastern opponents.

The league leader, Milwaukee, failed to play Columbus because of rain.

TROJANS INVADE OHIO BAILIWICK

Carpenter, Draper, Others to Compete Against Bucks.

COLUMBUS, June 12.—(UP)—A veteran track and field team from the University of Southern California, which steam-rolled its way to a National Collegiate championship last year and is favored to duplicate the feat this season, will oppose Ohio State in a dual meet here tomorrow.

The Trojans, called by many the greatest collegiate track team ever assembled, arrived here last night. The squad of 25 men was scheduled to take its final workout in Ohio stadium.

Southern California recently took the Pacific coast conference championship with ease. The Trojans have nine members of their squad who were point winners in the National collegiates in 1935.

In Kenny Carpenter, the far Westerners have the outstanding collegiate discus thrower in the country. Carpenter made a 'grand slam' last season when he took first places in the National Collegiate, the ICA and the National A.A.U. meets.

While Carpenter is entitled to the top billing, southern California has a host of other stars. The veteran Dean Cromwell, Trojan coach, believes his squad includes 10 men who will win Olympic berths.

Other stars Cromwell will send against the Bucks include Foy Draper, sprinter; Jim Cassin, junior A.A.U. 440 yard champion; Ross Bush, middle distance ace; Phil Cope and Roy Staley, a pair of stout hurdlers; Earl Meadows, Bill Sefton and Lorin Day, pole vaulters who go better than 14 feet and Pete Zariprin, distance runner.

JESSE OWENS TO REST; NOT TO RUN IN A. A. U.

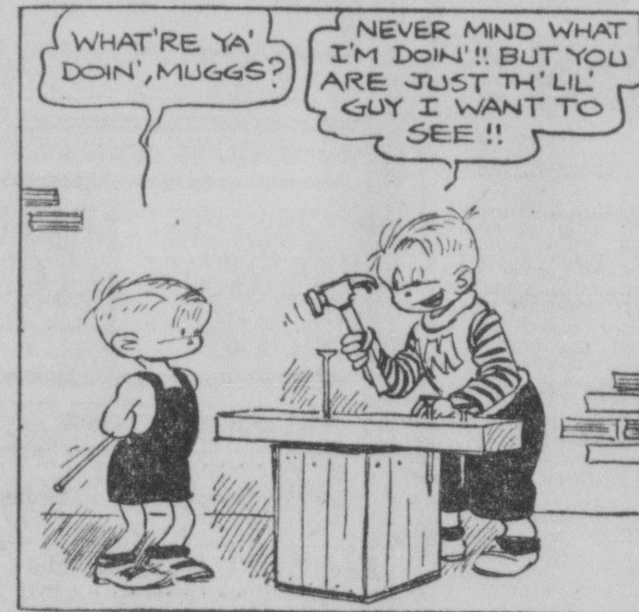

COLUMBUS, June 12.—(UP)—Jesse Owens, Ohio State's world record holder, will not compete in the National A. A. U. track and field meet Princeton, N. J., July 3-4. Larry Snyder, coach of the Buck age, announced here today.

After his appearance in the national collegiates at Chicago, June 18-19, Owens will rest until the final olympic tryouts at Randall Field, New York, July 11-12.

Snyder said the decision for Owens to pass up the meet was made to permit him to 'conserve'.

YESTERDAY'S HERO: Red Rolfe of the New York Yankees whose double drove home two runs in the tenth to defeat the Detroit Tigers. It was his fourth extra base hit of the game.

In case you can't recall him by sight he is Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., son of the president. Young Roosevelt is shown taking a drink of water after a workout at Red Top, Conn.

CUBS, IN MIDDLE TO DRIVE, TAKE LAST 8 CONTESTS

NEW YORK, June 12.—(UP)—The Chicago Cubs were out to win their ninth straight baseball game today, but Manager Grimm will have to spur his club toward a better showing on the road if he hopes to be a contender for the National league pennant.

If the Cubs win today they will tie the season record of nine consecutive victories compiled by the Giants last month—in turn the longest since the Chicagoans ran off 21 straight last fall. Grimm has his pitching staff in fine shape now with six starters winning regularly. Lee, Warneke, Henshaw, French, Davis, Carleton, Lee and Warneke is the order in which Cub hurlers have started and finished in winning their last eight games at Wrigley field.

If nature is so grand, why don't we feel pepped up enough to start the day until bed-time.

MARBERRY RETIRES AS BIG LEAGUE PITCHER

WASHINGTON, June 12.—(UP) Fred Marberry's name was stricken today from the roster of the Washington baseball club—at his own request.

Marberry voluntarily ended his big league career when he failed in his comeback effort with the club with which he won his greatest fame a few years ago as a relief pitcher.

AT THE CLIFTONA

The premier local presentation of "The Witness Chair" of the Cliftona theatre brings Ann Harding and Walter Abel together for the third time.

Several years ago on Broadway they played in Shakespeare's immortal drama, "The Taming of the Shrew." Since then, both Miss Harding and Mr. Abel have been enlisted for motion pictures.

Recently they were cast together in "The Lady Consents." In that picture, Abel wooed Miss Harding ardently throughout the length of the film, only to lose her to the more fortunate Herbert Marshall.

On the same bill will be shown "Three on the Trail," latest of the "Hopalong Cassidy" Westerns.

Filed in the High Sierras near Lone Pine and Kernville, Cal., some four hundred miles from Hollywood, the natural pictorial beauty of the setting forms a perfectly fitting background for one of the most dramatic Western stories ever to reach the screen.

AT THE GRAND

Edward Everett Horton, the

screen's favorite light comedian, stars in "Nobody's Fool," the Universal film at the Grand theatre Horton's best remembered previous successes include "Top Hat," "Her Master's Voice," "The Singing Kid," "Hearts Divided," "Your Uncle Dudley" and "His Night Out."

Why . . . Most Shoes Don't Fit

If you say "I wear a 5½C" that covers the length, and width of ball of foot. But how about waist, instep, and heel? Those vary in every foot, yet most shoe merchants pay little or no attention to these points when fitting feet.

ADKINS, WEILER DECLINE TO RUN FOR PARTY JOB

Harmony Reported as 36 Members of New Board Meet to Organize

T. D. KRINN IS SECRETARY

John S. Ritt Retains Post as Treasurer; 45 in Executive Group

Lawrence E. Goeller, Beverlyrd, a member of the Pickaway-co Democratic executive committee for the last several years, became its chairman Thursday evening when 36 members of the new committee met in American Hotel headquarters.

Mr. Goeller was chosen without opposition in a meeting marked by harmony and good feeling. Two other Democrats, George G. Adkins and W. E. Weiler, nominated at the central committee meeting a week ago, declined to enter the race to provide a clear field for Mr. Goeller. Mr. Adkins retires as chairman, after serving two years.

Two "old line" party leaders, Thomas D. Krinn and John S. Ritt, were re-elected secretary and treasurer, respectively, positions they have filled efficiently for several years.

Mr. Adkins made a short talk in retiring from the office, in which he thanked members of the committee for their co-operation and support. Mr. Goeller then made an acceptance talk in which he called on every member of the committee for complete co-operation.

The complete committee includes J. F. Mader, C. E. Helvering who is chairman of the central committee, W. E. Weiler, Frank Marion Jr., Charles Miller, Harry Bartholomew, John Himrod, Harry Hitchcock, Mr. Ritt, Mr. Goeller, Harry Moore, E. S. Neuding, L. J. CURB MONOPOLY, PRESIDENT CRIES

Nation of Homes Urged in Address in Dallas, Texas

DALLAS, Tex., June 12—(UP)—President Roosevelt today bluntly warned that unless monopoly was curbed, the United States faced the prospect of becoming a nation of boarding houses instead of a nation of homes.

The chief executive attacked concentrated wealth, and pledged protection to small business and labor.

"The net result of monopoly, the net result of economic and financial control in the hands of the few, has meant ownership of labor as a commodity," he said. "If labor is to be a commodity in the United States, in the final analysis it means we shall become a nation of boarding houses instead of a nation of homes."

"If our people ever submit to that, they will have said 'goodbye' to their historic freedom. Men do not fight for boarding houses. They will fight for their homes."

Mr. Roosevelt, addressing cheering thousands at the Cotton Bowl stadium, made a vigorous bid for continued liberal political support. The president arrived by special train early today to visit the Texas centennial exposition.

HUSBAND JAILED AFTER DEATH OF YOUTHFUL WIFE

YUKON, Okla., June 12—(UP)—Irene Williams, 14-year-old wife of Frank Williams, 25, was stabbed to death at a farm house near here today.

Williams was arrested a few minutes later. Constable John Alden said he admitted slaying his wife.

"She wouldn't live with me and I made up my mind she wouldn't live with anyone," Alden quoted Williams.

"I'm sorry I killed her," he added. "I'm ready to take my medicine."

Peach Crop, Other Fruit In Ohio Lost

Scarcity Expected Result of Cold Spring and Lack of Rain in May

A scarcity of fruit this summer in Pickaway-co and throughout Ohio was predicted today as a result of the severe winter and lack of rain this spring.

The Pickaway-co Farm Bureau reported that fruit trees have been damaged to a considerable extent. The federal-state crop reporting service is responsible for the survey of Ohio which found a scarcity certain.

Abnormally cool weather during May and rainfall which measured only 2.39 inches as compared to a normal precipitation of 3.69 inches, were blamed for the damage to fruit in the state. Other agricultural commodities suffered, too, the federal survey showed, but not so severely.

Peach Crop Gone

The crop report said there would be no peach crop in Ohio this year with the exception of a few scattered counties along Lake Erie. The indication was the crop's maximum would be 168,000 bushels as compared with a five-year average production of 1,089,000 bushels.

A large number of peach trees were killed by the severe winter, with the greatest loss among older trees.

The apple and cherry crops also will be exceptionally light. The apple crop was expected to be but 26 per cent normal and the cherry crop 18 per cent.

All sweet varieties of cherries were killed. The crop forecast was

TWO NAVY MEN DIE IN CRASH

Airplane Falls Into Atlantic in Cuban Bay

WASHINGTON, June 12—(UP)—A navy airplane launched from the cruiser Memphis crashed into the sea near Guantanamo bay, Cuba, yesterday, killing a naval officer and a seaman, the navy department was advised today.

The dead: Lieut. R. W. Larson, 33, of Omaha, Neb., and aviation machinist mate, 1st class, Sydney L. Harris, 31, of Brunswick, Ga.

Larson is survived by his widow who lives in the Canal Zone. Harris' widow, Mrs. Viola Pague Harris, lives in Concord, N. H.

Navy officials said cause of the accident had not been determined. A board of inquiry has been appointed to investigate.

GAMER KNOWS G. O. P. CHOICE MAN OF ACTION

"Landon is a man of very few words. He's not a speaker—he does all his speaking with actions."

Anton Gamer, Circleville dry cleaner, made that statement Friday morning, and he should know. Mr. Gamer has been a friend of the Landon family for many years.

Mr. Gamer's late wife, who was a former principal at the Washington-twp school, was a niece of Mr. Landon. She was tutor for his daughter, Peggy, when she was a child. Mrs. Gamer died in Kansas several weeks ago.

Before coming to Ohio in 1922, Mr. Gamer was in business in Parsons, Kas., for 22 years. Gov. Landon lived at Independence, Kas., about 30 miles from Parsons.

Mr. Gamer said his last visit with Gov. Landon was last August when they attended a dinner together in Parsons.

Three Courses Remain Open for Idaho Man as Platform is Approved

WASHINGTON, June 12—(UP)—Gov. Alf Landon's gold standard platform demands brought from Sen. William E. Borah today the comment:

"What does he mean by that?"

Borah, returning to the capital from the scene of bitter convention battles over context of the platform, did not immediately announce what effect the last minute Landon changes would have on his campaign support.

"I've made up my mind, all right," said the Idaho lion as he got off the Cleveland pullman, "but I'm not ready to make a statement just now."

His jaw was firmly set, his sentences crisp as he was greeted at the station with news of the eleventh-hour platform skirmish engineered by Landon which had the effect of bringing into the party declaration of principles two of the ideas which Borah has strenuously opposed. Namely:

1. Currency linked to gold.
2. A constitutional amendment for labor.

Ideas Qualified

True, both ideas were coppered with qualifications. Gold-backed currency only when it could be accomplished without damaging agricultural producers; and the constitutional amendment only if the assumption that the constitu-

NEW YORK, June 12—(UP)—Stocks fluctuated narrowly in dull trading in the early afternoon on the stock exchange. The tendency was irregular. Utilities held better than other groups. CONVENTION NOMINATES CHICAGO MAN WITHOUT OPPOSITION WHEN VANDENBERG REFUSES TO ACCEPT

Efforts of John Hamilton to Induce Michigan Senator to Take Position to No Avail; Session Closes at 1:14 p. m. Friday

Kansas Governor Selected Unanimously Late Thursday With His Earlier Opponents Seconding Address of Campaign Boss

PUBLIC HALL, CLEVELAND, June 12—(UP)—Colonel Frank Knox, Chicago publisher, today was nominated as Governor Alf M. Landon's running-mate as the Republican national convention neared its close.

Colonel Knox, who joined Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan, Senator William Borah of Idaho, Senator L. J. Dickinson of Iowa, and Robert Taft of Ohio, son of the former president, in stepping aside to make way for the Kansas presidential candidate, was chosen unanimously for vice president after a number of other nominees withdrew.

The Chicagoan received all the votes of the convention, 1,003.

Vandenberg Not Nominated

The name of Senator Vandenberg was not put in nomination at this afternoon's session although it was reported John D. M. Hamilton, Landon's campaign manager, went to his hotel Friday morning to try to persuade him to accept the nomination. Vandenberg was firm in his decision to decline.

Hamilton, after a half hour's conference in Vandenberg's suite, left refusing to comment. Vandenberg's son announced his father would make no statement.

Hamilton left the hotel accompanied by Sens. W. Warren Barbour of New Jersey and John Townsend of Delaware.

Vandenberg did not attend today's session of the convention.

There were reports in convention hall that the Landon strategy would be to nominate Vandenberg for vice president and put him in the position of being drafted. However, this was not done.

Colonel Knox was not in the hall when he was nominated.

Minor business comprised the remainder of the convention prior to adjournment at 1:14 p. m.

PUBLIC HALL, CLEVELAND, June 12—(UP)—Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, new prairie state leader and presidential nominee of the Republican party, charged with the entire G. O. P. behind him today in attack on the New Deal. The party, united for the first time since 1932, searched for a vice presidential nominee.

Landon was nominated unanimously last night. He was voted into supreme party command after a bold telegraphic warning to the Republican national convention that he had ideas beyond its platform and would not hesitate to make them effective.

Party unity is threatened only by the possibility of a bolt by Sen. William E. Borah.

Many Are Available

The next order of business is nomination of a vice presidential candidate. Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg has refused that honor. A draft-Vandenberg movement is under way. Frank Knox of Illinois is available as are Sen. L. J. Dickinson of Iowa, Robert A. Taft of Ohio, James W. Wadsworth of New York and Sen. Frederick Steiwer of Oregon.

This convention may log-jam their vice presidential stream and blast out of trouble with a new and unexpected name. Anything may happen here today. Delegates had no intention of remaining over another night although Cleveland has been hospitable and the weather fairly pleasant. The delegate bank rolls are depleted and it's home-going day in the Republican national convention.

A vice presidential huddle of Landon leaders broke up at 3:20 a. m., today. Hamilton said no decision on a nominee had been reached.

He said he would telephone Landon today and hold another conference at 9:30 a. m. He said the phone call would be the first instance in which Landon's vice presidential opinion had been sought.

"This convention will adjourn tomorrow," he said. "We are not going to hold it over. A decision will be reached today."

Former Sen. Hiram Bingham and Rep. Joseph Martin, Jr., Mass., met with Hamilton and representatives of most of the larger states. They went over all presidential possibilities. Word came from several conferees that Vandenberg and Knox were first choices but Bingham said he had discussed the

King Spud remained on his high price throne Friday.

Those who purchased potatoes last Saturday found the price of the new crop ranging around $1 a peck. Three grocers, checked at noon Friday, gave prices for the new crop at $1.03, 89 cents and 75 cents per peck. Prices for the old crop were quoted at 75 cents, 69 cents and 65 cents.

Drought during the growing season was blamed for a sharp rise and the price jump. Last year at this time the prices ranged from 15 to 25 cents per peck.

CONVENTION NOMINATES CHICAGO MAN WITHOUT OPPOSITION WHEN VANDENBERG REFUSES TO ACCEPT

matter with Vandenberg and was convinced he would not accept.

Up to Delegates
"We will give the delegates a free hand if they want it," Hamilton said. "We are not going to dictate."

The conferees shunned geographical considerations to go far in all directions in search of a nominee. They practically called the roll of house and senate Republicans without coming to agreement. Almost every area had a favorite son. Conferees said there was no discussion of naming a Democrat for the vice presidency.

Landon's nomination was light ratified the unofficial polls, the political surveys, the opinions of experts who have been writing for many weeks that this governor of a typical prairie state was so far ahead of the field that he was not likely to be headed. A parade of defeated men passed review last night before the convention crowd in acknowledgement that the survey, polls and experts were correct. Vandenberg, Knox, Dickinson and Taft, all favorite sons or better in the six months derby that thundered to a finish in the convention here, stepped up and put their noses in the microphones to tell the world that they were for Landon now.

Vandenberg summoned the Republican host to elect Landon and stop Roosevelt.

Dickinson lapped the New Deal and reported that Iowa seconded the nomination of Alf Landon.

Supported by Knox
Knox applauded Landon for the courage and sincerity of his telegraphic amendment of the party platform and pledged all his ability to the election of Landon to the presidency.

Taft put Ohio on the Kansas bandwagon.
And then these men stepped into the shadows. The Landon show was on.

But there were shouts for Borah. The old man from Idaho put his impress on the convention. He came to town roaring and for three days he has been snapping the lash around ducking heads of platform committeemen. Some on the floor and some in the galleries joined last night in the last demonstration ever likely to center around the senior senator from Idaho as a presidential possibility. He is 71 years old. It was a simple demonstration limited to just three or four words, "We want Borah. Where is Borah?"

There was none to answer and the moment for Borah's appearance before a Republican national convention in the role of candidate or president maker probably passed forever.

All through these ceremonies and before the delegates had been clamoring for the nomination. They wanted quick action. But the rules were there to be obeyed and they had required a preliminary roll call of the states in which each in alphabetical order be given an opportunity to place a man or woman before the convention for nomination to the presidency.

TESTIMONY IS COMPLETED IN REICHELDERFER CASE

All testimony had been submitted in common pleas court Thursday afternoon in the suit of Myrtle and Arnold Reichelderfer, Tarleton, against T. B. Wolf and others. Arguments and briefs will be submitted to Judge J. W. Adkins next Thursday.

The suit asks an injunction against collection of a $2,000 judgment on a note. The plaintiffs contend the note is a forgery.

Republican Nominee for President Has Chat With Press

WHILE Republicans in Cleveland named him for their nominee to make the presidential race against the incumbent, President Roosevelt, Governor Alfred M. Landon of Kansas chatted with newspapermen at his Topeka home.

for 1,150 tons as compared with 4,200 tons a year ago.

The estimated peach crop was set at 196,000 bushels as compared with a five year average of 348,000 bushels.

The estimated June 1 crops of winter wheat, Ohio rye, oats, spring wheat, barley, tame hay, clover and timothy were all under their averages for the past 10 years.

The winter wheat crop was set at 32,855,000 bushels as compared with 42,343,000 bushels in 1935.

Hay Benefitted
Early May rains benefited the growth of hay in pastures of the state and although the precipitation for the remainder of the month was insufficient to sustain the growth, the June 7 outlook was for a crop 80 per cent normal, one point above the 10 year average.

Poor seed and insufficient moisture took a heavy toll on corn. The combination caused many farmers to re-plant either portions of their crop or to re-seed entire fields.

ARABS CONTINUE TO SPREAD FEAR OVER HOLY LAND

JERUSALEM, June 12—(UP)—Assistant Police Superintendent Alan Sigrist was wounded from ambush late today while driving his automobile near Herod's Gate as Arab disorders continued in Palestine.

Sigrist lost control of his car, which plunged down a 30-foot embankment.

British constable Daxat, who was a passenger in Sigrist's automobile, jumped clear. He shot and captured one of the assailants.

Earlier 17 persons were reported wounded when a military escort returned the fire of Arabs who attacked the Haifa-Jerusalem train.

Eighteen Jews were taken to the hospital at Tel-Aviv after a train was bombed as it left Halkilleh.

BOY, 14, MISSING SINCE TUESDAY; SEARCH STARTS

The sheriff's department was searching Friday for Junior Chaffin, 14, Circleville high school student and stepson of Joseph W. Speakman, Wayne-twp. who has been missing since Tuesday.

Speakman said the youth left the house about 6 a. m. and said he was going to find work. He thought he planned to seek farm work in the immediate neighborhood but when he had not returned Thursday he notified county officers.

Speakman said the last report he had received of the youth was from a relative in Richmondale, Ross-co. He stopped there Wednesday.

The boy was a freshman in Circleville high school during the last term. He is 5 feet, 4 inches tall, weighs 135 pounds, has a fair complexion, brown eyes and hair, and was wearing overalls, a blue shirt and black oxfords when he left his home.

LANDON'S GOLD, LABOR DEMANDS SURPRISE BORAH

tion already permits protection for working women and children is erroneous.

But nevertheless they are definitely opposed to the philosophy Borah fathered from the time he arrived in Cleveland and decided to relinquish his nomination aspirations but retain a finger in drafting the party platform.

There appeared three courses remaining open for Borah. He can accept the last minute changes gracefully, support Landon and forget the intra-party differences; he can bolt the party; or he can adopt a middle-of-the-road stand, giving Landon neither his support nor his opposition.

May Follow Middle

One friend of the senator, who saw his reception of the platform news, predicted it would be the middle-of-the-road course that Borah will pursue.

Borah was alone as he swung down from the pullman. He looked tired. His sombre double-breasted brown suit was unbuttoned. His face was dabbed with powder after a hasty shave on the train.

JOHN HAMILTON TO GIVE FARLEY DIFFICULT TASK

Topeka Attorney Promises
Bitter Fight in Fall;
Angered By Klan

CLEVELAND, June 12.—(UP)—A square-jawed, determined Topeka, Kas., attorney, who still is in politics because certain opponents made him mad 15 years ago, set out today to return the Republican party to national power.

He is red-haired, blue-eyed John Daniel Miller Hamilton, 44, presidential campaign manager for Kansas Gov. Alfred Mossman Landon.

Opposition aplenty will James A. Farley, Democratic master strategist, find in John Hamilton. A clever maneuverer, Hamilton may be expected to match the postmaster general's every move. Hamilton's first job ended last night when his candidate was nominated by acclamation. His second—a five-month campaign to beat Gov. Landon in the White House—began today.

Notice is Served

The nomination campaign—climaxed by the last 10 days of deft maneuvers here—served notice on President Roosevelt's manager what kind of battle he may expect from the Republicans.

Hamilton's temperament and ability were shown clearly at his twice-daily press conference during the time he had his camp established here.

Smiling quickly and just as quickly becoming solemn, Hamilton was subjected to many barages of questions after his triumph.

To most he had an answer of some sort; to some he was evasive; and to others he snapped with spontaneous anger "no answer necessary."

Of athletic build, Hamilton preferred to sit atop a modernistic table at press conferences, than in an overstuffed chair.

His feet dangled, he looked toward the floor as a correspondent phrased a question to trip him into admission of the latest "deal."

It didn't take John Hamilton long to flash back his answer. He raised his head, looked straight at his questioner and fired away, seldom gesturing with his reply.

Arriving here 10 days ago with only better than average support, Hamilton wound up last night with Landon's name the only one offered to the convention for the nomination.

He once was on the opposite side of the Kansas Republican fence from the man for whom he has won the highest honor the party can bestow.

Landon managed a gubernatorial campaign for Clyde A. Reed. Hamilton directed the opposition camp. Landon won and soon afterward the two joined forces. It was Landon who was responsible for Hamilton's election as national committeeman in 1932.

The political manager is Iowa-born, attended Phillips academy at Andover, Mass., and finished his law course at Northwestern university, Chicago. His present law partner, Ralph T. O'Neill, is a Democrat.

He has held office as a county judge and as a member of the state legislature where he was speaker of the house.

Threatened By Klan

It was during his term as county judge 15 years ago that Hamilton was about to quit politics and devote his time to private practice. A delegation called on him and threatened that if he did not join the Ku Klux Klan he would never again hold public office.

The ultimatum made him so mad that he decided to stay in politics and "see the thing through." He was elected to the state legislature against Klan opposition and then defeated the Klan candidate for speaker of the house.

Hamilton is married, the father of a boy and girl.

The New Holland board will meet in the near future to fill the vacancy.

SCIOTO-TWP SCHOOL REJECTS 6-6 PROGRAM

Commercial Point school will operate during the 1936-37 term on the six-to-two-four plan instead of the six-six plan.

John G. Barton, superintendent, explained the school is not adequately arranged for the six-six plan and it is inconvenient for the seventh and eighth grade pupils to change classes every 45 minutes.

The six-six plan was used in the school four years.

Under the new plan the elementary school, seventh and eighth grades and high school will operate as three units. The seventh and eighth grades will be departmentalized. Kenneth Bobb will teach English, spelling, hygiene and geography.

Russell Snavely from Otterbein College, Westerville, will be principal and instructor in mathematics and physical education. Hackney served as principal last year.

CHURCH TO GET VALUED LETTERS

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—One of the finest and most valuable collections of manuscripts, autographs and relics pertaining to the Unitarian Church in America, gathered by George E. Nitzsche, records of the University of Pennsylvania, will be given to the Meadville Seminary soon.

The collection, gathered over a period of 20 years, is valued at thousands of dollars. A large part of it was made possible through the interest and donations of Cyrus H. K. Curtis.

Included in the collection are more than 800 signatures and manuscript besides many letters and manuscripts of Unitarian Presidents of the United States, letters, manuscripts, autographs and relics of great American poets, scientists, statesmen, lawyers and business leaders who followed the Unitarian faith.

Jefferson Letters Included

"My collection includes autograph letters from Presidents John Adams, John Quincy Adams, Thomas Jefferson, Fillmore and Taft; poets and literary personalities such as Bryant, Longfellow, Emerson, Dickens and the Alcotts; historians such as Motley and Prescott; scientists such as Darwin, Wedgwood, Steinmetz and Priestley, and many other great ministers, authors, educators, lawyers, doctors, abolitionists and industrialists," said Nitzsche.

One of the most prized autographs of Benjamin Franklin ever found is also in the collection. It is displayed on a fragment of old paper where an unusual death drawing is in the right hand corner.

In boyish handwriting the note reads: "I O U one pound, Benjamin Franklin." On the reverse

LONDON CONTROLS NATIONAL REPUBLICAN PARTY

LEADERS CLAIM CONFLICT WITH BORAH ASSURED

Telegram Read By His Chief Aide Has Much to Do With Final Platform

CLEVELAND, June 12.—(UP)—Gov. Alf M. Landon sent the challenge of his personal leadership echoing across the nation today by a bold and politically potent intervention in building the platform on which he seeks the presidency.

The new Republican leader spurred a burst of party enthusiasm for his courage—and speculation on the political wisdom of his maneuver—when by remote control from Topeka he prefaced his nomination by going beyond the platform to favor a constitutional amendment on hours and wages for women and children if necessary; a potential future return to the gold standard and a drastic policy on removal of government jobs from politics.

He revived, too, the long shadow of a party conflict with Sen. William E. Borah, which leaders believed he had removed in the past, hectic hours of platform building. The Landon declarations on gold and a constitutional amendment conflicted with Borah's strongly expressed views and may yet send the Idahoan on a walk.

Frankness Pleases

Some veterans of the party expressed in private their wish that the Kansas could have stood on the platform as passed by the convention, but they declared unanimously their admiration for his frankness, courage and leadership. The latitude of his statement in affecting interests of both east and west equally appeared to have taken the sting from the nomination's disagreement with the resolutions committee's decisions.

There was both political drama and surprise in disclosure to the convention of Landon's challenge of the decision of party leaders not to accept all of his platform proposals.

Red-headed young John D. M. Hamilton, the Kansas manager, strode out on the long tongue of the speakers' platform to nominate the sunflower state's candidate. A white glare of spotlights beat down on him as he stood tall and broad-shouldered and spoke in a ringing voice.

But it was Landon's words that the multitude heard. Hamilton began by reading a telegram from the man about to be nominated as the party's hope of driving the New Deal from power.

1. The Kansas governor hoped that the convention was correct in its belief that states could enact wage and hour laws and abolish sweatshops under the constitution. But he could not be satisfied with a hope. In spite of the resolutions committee rejection of the proposal, Landon informed the convention that he favored, if necessary, a constitutional amendment to achieve that objective.

2. The governor also agreed with the platform plank calling for a sound currency at all hazards by means of a balanced budget. But there, too, he said, he must explain his personal belief that "the second requisite" is a currency expressed in terms of gold and convertible into gold.

That, he added, did not mean an immediate return to the gold standard, but it did mean a return when it could be done without penalizing the nation's economy or injuring farmers or producers of other raw materials. The convention had rejected reference to the gold standard in the platform.

For Merit System

3. In the third place, Landon's telegram said, he would go beyond the platform's proposal on the merit system. "I believe," he said, "that there should be included within the merit system every position in the administrative service below the rank of assistant secretaries of major departments and agencies and that this inclusion should cover the entire post office department." This he expressed to the convention his specific terms for a drastic elimination of politics from federal jobs—especially the patronage-dealing post office department—although the resolutions committee had refused to go that far.

Thus the nominee stepped in where more experienced party leaders had feared to tread. He courted the resentment of eastern leaders who had insisted that the words "constitutional amendment"

LIBERIA OFFERS NEW DESTROYER NEGROES HAVEN OF GERM FOUND

MONROVIA, Liberia (UP)—Liberia definitely favors the repatriation of Negroes from the United States, according to a statement made here by President Edwin Barclay. The republic's established principle is that it shall always be an asylum for those of African descent.

The statement came as a result of many inquiries received by President Barclay and the American Minister here, after the Virginia legislature recently memorialized the United States congress to permit the colonization of 400,000 American Negroes who had petitioned President Roosevelt for government assistance in migrating to Liberia.

President Barclay said he had received an inquiry from a large Negro organization of Chicago's South Side, whose aim is "to return people of African descent to their motherland, Africa." Mrs. M. M. L. Gordon, president of this organization, asked President Barclay whether published reports were true that he is not in sympathy with the proposed wholesale influx of Negroes.

He denied this report and said the only persons not desired in Liberia were opportunists and political agitators. Since Liberia is self-governing, he said, he would be compelled to take a definite position regarding the coming of organized groups having as their object the making of the country as a base for international antagonisms.

The type of Negroes that are welcome in Liberia, said President Barclay, are skilled artisans, trained agriculturists, business men with capital, and young physicians willing to go into the interior and develop the aborigines. He advised that all prospective immigrants communicate with the Liberian government before making final arrangements for sailing.

should not be mentioned because it was on the constitutional issue that the party should base its fight against the Roosevelt administration. But the resentment, if any, appeared mild.

He dared also the objections of westerners who had demanded that there should be no mention of "gold standard" in the platform.

On the third issue, Landon ignored what some political advisers had considered unwise policy.

They pointed out that great political importance was involved that there was a possibility that the administration in power might take advantage of the proposal by putting the merit system into effect and thus consolidating their hold on the political affairs of the nation.

But for every politico who shook his head uncertainly at the mention of the Landon declarations, there was another—and sometimes two—who pointed with pride.

NEW DESTROYER OF GERM FOUND

PHILADELPHIA (UP)—Medical science once again has come to the aid of mankind with the discovery of a new and powerful non-poisonous germ killer.

The finding of silver oxide powder, produced from any silver salt by addition sodium or potassium hydroxide, bridges a great gap in the use of silver as a medicine, medical men say. The oxide, a brown powder, was described for the first time at a meeting of the American Philosophical Society in session in Philadelphia.

The germicidal, the chemistry of which was explained by John J. Muller, professor of chemistry at the University of Pennsylvania, where the discovery was made, combines silver nitrate and colloidal silver.

Nitrate Too Strong

Silver nitrate, a salt, is probably one of the most potent germicides, but burns. Colloidal silver is mild, but lacks much of the metal's germicidal ability.

The new powder, when mixed with paraffin, makes a salve for external use and it will dissolve in water for use internally.

A test proving its non-toxicating properties was made substituting the germ killer for drinking water and given to baby chicks. On the "silver water" the chicks grew to full feather and showed no signs of retardation or bad effects.

Tests for medicinal effects were made in conjunction with Dr. William Lentz, of the Department of Veterinary Medicine at the university, but the findings were not published.

Previous experiments with various forms of silver caused argyria, or deposit of metallic silver in the skin, turning a person a ghastly gray color. The new brown powder caused nothing of the like to happen.

This new discovery has been placed on the most delicate membranes, including the eye, without irritation. It has been given only to animals by the mouth, and cats, dogs, horses and cows have been cured of intestinal infections without ill effects.

LAKE EXHIBITS START JUNE 27

CLEVELAND (UP)—Transferring three miles of lake front here from a mass of lumber piles, unfinished buildings and dusty temporary roadways into the Great Lakes Exposition in less than three weeks is the task facing Albert N. Gonsior, construction engineer of the exposition.

Gonsior, surveying today the 10-acre exposition area from his office on the 22nd floor of the Terminal Tower Building, said that the gates of his $2,600,000 construction project would be open to visitors on June 27, official opening date.

Besides the buildings now under construction the exposition will utilize $25,000,000 more of permanent buildings belonging to the city. This group includes Public Hall, scene of the Republican National Convention, Cleveland Stadium, with a seating capacity of 76,000, and Cleveland Public Library.

Hues To Blend

With construction of new buildings nearing completion, the next biggest task is painting the harmonious hues of white, broken with dashes of red and blue. All architecture in the exposition, except that of several foreign villages, will be of the modernistic type advocated by Otto Tegan, color and architecture consultant of the exposition.

Three miniature light-houses are being built on the edge of Lake Erie to aid in the docking of lake steamers and seaplanes at night. A landing field for blimps and autogiros is under construction.

Roads Are Dustless

Within the exposition grounds the building of 15 miles of roadway is being retarded so that it will not be ruined by heavy construction traffic. When construction is finished on a certain section, Gonsior has equipment and men to lay 376 tons of asphalt, or 2 1/2 miles of roadway a day. All exposition roads are dustless asphaltic macadam.

Three weeks ago the exposition site was barren of all plant life, shrubs and trees; today over 400

FINDS ALL-BRAN BETTER THAN PILLS, SALTS, AND OILS

This Natural Food Relieved His Constipation*

We quote from his letter: "I decided to make a fair trial (of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN), with the result that I felt much improved. I have quit all laxatives since 1929."

"For 34 years, I had to take pills, salts, oils, teas, or other fluids, which did more harm than good. ALL-BRAN now is our breakfast cereal for the whole family."

Mr. Martin Wroblewski, 201 Church Street, Highland Park, Mich.

Meals low in "bulk" often lead to constipation. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides generous "bulk" in effective form. This "bulk" absorbs moisture, forms a soft mass, and gently exercises and cleanses the system. ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B and iron.

Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. How much better to use this natural food in place of patent medicines.

Use as a cereal with milk or cream, or in cooking. ALL-BRAN is much more effective than part-bran products. It is sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

*Constipation due to insufficient "bulk" in meals.

Brown Says Knox to Get 47; Michigan Man to Receive Much Support

CLEVELAND, June 12—(UP)—How the Ohio delegation will vote today when the Republican national convention chooses a vice presidential candidate probably will depend on developments immediately preceding the convention session.

No formal caucus is planned, according to Ed. D. Schorr, chairman of the Buckeye delegation. He said he did not think a caucus would be necessary for the delegation to reach some decision before the balloting.

Clarence J. Brown of Blanchester manager for Frank Knox, Chicago publisher, predicted after the presidential nomination of Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas that Knox would have 47 Ohio votes for vice president.

Vandenberg Strong
Others of the opinion that Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan stood a good chance of winning the majority of the Ohio votes.

Despite the fact that five of the 52 Ohio delegates were pledged to the candidacy of Sen. William E. Borah of Idaho, the state voted unanimously for Landon's nomination last night.

Judge Walter W. Wamamaker of Akron, for the Borah group, had said before the session that all five Borah delegates would vote as pledged. Later he said, the five delegates had decided to "go along with" Landon to save Borah from embarrassment.

Popular Ohio Choice
Robert A. Taft of Cincinnati, who was Ohio's "favorite son" candidate for the nomination, told the convention last night that Gov. Landon would have been Ohio's popular choice for the nomination had the Kansas governor permitted his name to be used in the Ohio primary.

Taft made the last speech, seconding the nomination of Landon.

"Had Gov. Landon permitted the use of his name in the Ohio primary, he would have swept Ohio as he swept so many other states," Taft said. "His popularity is not sectional. It extends throughout every state in the United States."

"Last night Herbert Hoover called on this convention to lead the attack to regain the citadels of liberty. In Governor Landon we find the ideal captain to lead that attack."

"He is an uncompromising foe of the new deal administration. In Governor Landon we will find a president willing to face unpleasant truths and to tell the people they cannot enjoy socialistic experiments without paying for them in increased taxation and a reduced standard of living."

Constitutional Government

A pledge to maintain the constitution and the system of local self-government and the American system of free enterprise.

Reemployment

Advocates removal of restrictions on production; withdrawal of government competition with private payrolls; encouragement of legitimate business.

The plank said it was believed "this can be done within the Constitution as it now stands."

Agriculture

Facilitation of economical production and increased consumption on a basis of abundance instead of scarcity; a national land-use program for acquiring nonproductive farms with state approval; a program for a balance between soil-building and soil-depleting crops to insure productivity with reasonable benefit payments to co-operating farmers on family-type farms, but so regulated as to eliminate "the New Deal's destructive policy towards the dairy and livestock industries;" extension of experimental aid to farmers; promotion of industrial use of farm products; protect the American farmer against foreign products; effective quarantine against imported livestock, dairy and other farm products from countries which do not impose health and sanitary regulations fully equal to the United States; a series of provisions for farm credits and decentralization and non-partisan control of the farm credit administration; governmental aid in disposal of exportable surpluses.

Monopolies

A pledge for vigorous enforcement of criminal and civil laws against monopolies and trusts and their officials, and enactment of such additional legislation as necessary to prevent monopoly.

Government Finance

2. Favoring equal opportunity for colored citizens and pledging them protection of their economic status and personal safety.
3. A pledge for Indians to aid amelioration of living conditions.
4. A pledge for adequate compensation and care for veterans, and their widows, orphans and dependents.
5. Use of every effort to collect war debts due the United States.
6. Opposition to legislation discriminating against women in civil and state employment.

An affirmation of "our unalterable conviction" that the fate of the nation will depend on the character and virtue of government, on self-reliance and integrity and thrift of the people and their willingness to meet responsibilities. A paragraph of quotation from the first Republican platform of 1856 was included regarding to liberty of conscience and equality of rights and inviting aid of "men of all parties however differing from us in other respects."

The last paragraph was a pledge that the nominees of the party would carry out the platform as "a matter of private honor and public faith."

QUESTION—
IS THE IRON IN BREAD HEALTHFUL?

ANSWER—

YES! Scientific research proves that not only is the iron in bread in an available form, but bread helps us to get the benefit of more of the iron from the other foods we eat. It is especially beneficial for people suffering from anemia.

OPEN LETTERS

TO PROPERTY OWNERS

FOLK: Everything is ready for the inauguration of Circleville's extensive WPA sidewalk program. All details have been ironed out and an agent named to make arrangements with property owners for improvements. You have an opportunity to obtain good, strong sidewalks, curbs and gutters at practically material expense. All labor is supplied by WPA. Dozens of relief men will be provided employment through the program. Their pay flows through every business channel in this city. Cement will be purchased from local dealers at retail prices. Practically every street in this city needs sidewalks and curb improvement. Property owners, you now have a chance to take advantage of real "bargain" offers. You will have an opportunity to make the repairs you desire. It is your civic duty to give the program serious consideration.

CIRCUITEER

TO MAYOR W. J. GRAHAM

DEAR SIR: I noticed you warned Circleville merchants and residents against the sale and explosion of fireworks on the Fourth of July. The regulations you cited are under city ordinances established many years ago, but seldom enforced. Last year five children were treated in Berger hospital for burns suffered from fireworks. If you want a safe and sane Fourth of July in this city see that the regulations you announced are properly enforced. If residents of this city contributed the money they spend annually on fireworks to a general fund Circleville could have a fireworks display and celebration worthwhile. The display could be presented in some field near the city for the enjoyment of everyone, and a man properly trained in the explosion of pyrotechnics would be in charge.

CIRCUITEER

TO BANK DIRECTORS

OFFICIALS: Your selection of George P. Foresman to become president of the First National bank is a step forward. Mr. Foresman is recognized as one of Circleville's most upright citizens. His election is certain to help the First National bank maintain its reputation as a bulwark among Circleville's financial institutions.

CIRCUITEER

COUNCIL OF RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

DEAR SIRS: Your 69th annual convention, one of the finest ever held, is now history. The program was excellent, but I think a few suggestions can be offered to improve the sessions and increase the crowd. Your convention and the Youth conference lasted practically nine hours. Many who attended the sessions said the programs were too long. Either cut the program shorter or hold the Youth conference on another day. Holding the conference after the county and city schools are dismissed for summer vacation causes a deep cut in attendance. Select an earlier date. Sunday is the proper day for the convention and I think it would be foolish to even consider a change.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

CLEVELAND, June 12 — The Republicans' campaign policy evidently is to be one of attack on President Roosevelt's way of running things rather than a fight for any particular constructive program of their own.

This is assuming that Senator Frederick Steiwer, in his keynote speech at the Cleveland convention, and Representative Bertrand H. Snell, in his address as the convention's permanent chairman, correctly outlined the G. O. P.'s plans. Presumably they did. Convention keynotes and permanent chairmen usually know what they are talking about.

Neither Steiwer nor Snell suggested much as to what the Republicans, if they win, propose to do. Both dwell upon what their party proposes to undo that has been done under the Roosevelt administration.

A DISTINCTION

It was not so much the New Deal that the two G. O. P. spokesmen criticized; it was the Rooseveltian method of doing the dealing. Steiwer especially said that, at least, he thought rather well of the details of the present White House tenant's general scheme to fered to improve the sessions and increase the crowd. Your convention and the Youth conference lasted practically nine hours. Many who attended the sessions said the programs were too long. Either cut the program shorter or hold the Youth conference on another day. Holding the conference after the county and city schools are dismissed for summer vacation causes a deep cut in attendance. Select an earlier date. Sunday is the proper day for the convention and I think it would be foolish to even consider a change.

CIRCUITEER

TO MAYOR GRAHAM

EXECUTIVE: You made a move this week for which you should be commended. A number of Circleville men, steady customers in your police court, have thought they could go as they pleased without suffering a very heavy penalty. The CIRCUITEER commends you for taking steps to break up the intoxication practice which has been gaining momentum weekly. A rest of from seven to 30 days in the county jail will teach many of these "regulars" that Circleville laws are made to abide by and not break.

CIRCUITEER

TO PATRIOTIC ORDERS

LEADERS: It is a shame that Independence Day, one of the most valued holidays in the national calendar, is not observed in Circleville. Hundreds of cities of Circleville's size, and many larger and smaller, have elaborate programs on this day, winding up the function with a fine display of fireworks late in the evening. Ashville, in recent years, has been the county leader in this respect. A big celebration has been held in the village annually under the Community Club, and each has been successful. Even though Circleville fails to properly observe the Fourth of July, it is gratifying that Ashville is progressive enough to make the day an outstanding one in the year. Something should be done in Circleville.

TO MISS MARY WILDER

LIBRARIAN: Few Circleville persons realized until they read the story in Tuesday's Herald that your library offered so many diversions. Many have used the institution daily for years, probably, without considering just how many different advantages you have to offer. The public library, which in the last two years has been opened to the county, is truly a city within itself. Each resident of the city and county could help himself a great deal by taking advantage of the institution.

CIRCUITEER

TO ORDER OF EASTERN STAR

FRIENDS: The inspection program conducted in Circleville last Friday and Saturday was a success from start to finish. The persons who visited Circleville were gracious, and the hospitality shown by local members of the order was splendid. Circleville seeks gatherings of this sort, and always tries to do its part to make delegates feel at home.

Lady, Be Gallant

By MARIE BLIZARD

COPYRIGHT: RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

READ THIS FIRST:

Joan Spencer, a small town school teacher, recently disappointed in love, is engaged as secretary to Julian Sloane, noted playboy. She believes, anyway, her new life immensely gins to enjoy her luxurious summer home where she now lives. Sheila True, an actress and close friend of Julian's, is the only disturbing factor. Sheila obviously is jealous of the playboy's pretty secretary. At a house party Joan sits out a dance with Pierre Durand, Sheila's new flame. While playing golf during the same week-end party, Joan rescues Sheila who has overturned in a canoe with Pierre and then suddenly is stunned by a blow on the head as she is about to climb from the lake. While Joan is recuperating from her accident, Alcega Garrity, an admirer she had met at Sloane's, tells her that Julian is in love with her. Just as Joan begins to realize she is becoming extremely fond of Julian, he tells her he must go to Europe on business.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

FOR ONE awful moment Joan had thought that Julian was telling her it was all over. She could have a vacation! But, thank heaven, it was only because he was going to Europe. "But what about the book?" she asked.

"We'll forget about that for a while. I always proceed slowly on books, anyway. The girl has engaged Gilbert Haggerty to do a play for the coming season but he prefers to make it a collaboration and has asked me to come in on it. He can't get away so I've got to run over to England to work with him."

"Does that mean that 'Mortal on Olympus' won't be finished for this year?" Julian had asked her. "I'll have to put that aside until this is over. In any event you must have a good rest because there will be lots of work for you to do when I get back."

"Still threatening me?" Joan permitted herself that small bit of railery.

"You've no idea what a demon I can be when I'm working seriously. And you are a temptation to me. You are always ready, always at hand to encourage me to work. I hope it won't be a boomerang and I hope you won't regret the bargain you made when you came here."

"I'm sure I won't ever do that," Joan answered readily, having not the slightest idea of what was ahead of her. It was enough for her that she had escaped the deadly monotony of her work.

Joan came downstairs, with every beat of her heart rocking her still aching head, a few days later and found Julian ready to leave for New York to catch a boat at midnight for London.

"Take good care of yourself. You've had a bad blow, my child."

Get lots of sleep. Don't fall in love with any of the Blakeville boys because I need you. Julian wanted to tell her not to fall in love with Alex Garrity and she wanted to tell him that she was through falling in love. She wanted to tell him that if he didn't go that very minute, she was quite sure to make a fool of herself and give way to the lums that was rising in her throat. She was afraid that she'd tell him that the next six weeks would be the longest she'd ever had to face.

But he didn't and she didn't. She smiled at him gaily and promised to get lots of sleep, said she would probably go to bed and when he got back that he wouldn't recognize her and held out her hand to him.

"I'll bring you something from London," he said. "What would you like?"

"If you have any idea about what you think would be nice for Sheila, let me know. I'll send you my address. Sheila always expects me to spend half my time shopping for something different. Well, good-by, Joan. You might drop me a line."

He was gone and Joan, her toes pointed in, chin in hand and meditative as to brow, looked down a road that appeared to be very empty. She kicked a few pebbles around and wondered if she were still adept at playing jacks. She might as well think about that as to try to analyze why she felt badly just because Julian had said that he was going to buy a gift for Sheila.

She entertained herself thinking about a few suggestions for gifts for Sheila. A very small, very sweet and unexpectedly snappy baby alligator would be a nice idea.

"You're a cat!" Joanie Spencer is a cat! Joanie Spencer ought to have her mouth and mind washed with soap!" she sang to herself until she had recovered her naturally happy disposition.

"Sure there isn't anything I can do to help?" she asked for the tenth time that day as she sat posed at the wheel of the Rattlebrain. Her bags were in the back of the dilapidated car.

Mrs. Henderson removed her hand from the car door. "Not this time, Joan, but thank you for offering. Kobs and I will close this place in three weeks. It's never completely closed, you know. Many's the time Mr. Sloane comes up here in the autumn and winter. But well, he's going back to his job in that time because there's plenty to do to get the town house in order."

"I'll write you when I am coming into town then."

"Indeed you will. I want you to select your own rooms but I'm sure you'll like the nearest to the door. And you won't have to be going over the stairs. There's an elevator."

"What wank! Well, I'm off and thank you again for being so very good to me and going to all that extra trouble. I promise I won't ever get bumped on the head again."

Joan proceeded to Blakeville and her sister, Dorothy.

Dorothy was delighted to have started to fill its rails in the northward.

Poems That Live

TOO CANDID BY HALF

As Tom and his wife were discussing one day
Of their several faults in a bantering way
Said she, "Though my wit you disparage,
I'm sure, my dear husband, our friends will attest
This much, at the least, that my judgment is best."
Quoth Tom, "So they said at our marriage."

HOME-THOUGHTS, FROM ABROAD

O to be in England
Now that April's there,
And whoever wakes in England
Sees, some morning, unaware,
That the lowest boughs and the brushwood sheaf
Round the elm-tree bole are in tiny leaf,
While the chaffinch sings on the orchard bough
In England—now!

And after April, when May follows,
And the whitethroat builds, and all the swallows!
Hark, where my blossom'd pear-tree in the hedge
Leans to the field and scatters on the clover
Blossoms and dewdrops—at the bent sprays' edge—
That's the wise thrush; he sings each song twice over,
Lest you should think he never could recapture
The first fine careless rapture!
And though the fields look rough with hoary dew,
All will be gay when noontide wakes anew
The buttercups, the little children—dew
Far brighter than this gaudy melon-flower!
—Robert Browning.

HERE IS AN amusing hand, given me by a naval officer, lately returned from Guam. A Spanish trader played the South hand one evening in Spain, Mariana Islands, referring to some feeling to the defenders as "ladrones". The fact that he was feeling did not tend to soothe his feelings, even if he was not doubled, as would have been related in case some player wanted to make a better story of what took place.

Bidding went: South, 1-Spade; North, 3-Spades; South, 4-Hearts; North, 4-Spades, which South wisely let alone.

The opening lead was the 5 of clubs. East's K won on a finesse, and he led back his only heart. The 7 of hearts looked like the top card of a short suit, and again a finesse allowed the K to win.

West's 4 hearts, the 4 hearts in dummy and the fact that South had bid 4 on the suit, marked East with no more than 5 of hearts was revealed.

DIET AND HEALTH

Changing Habits Depends Upon Individual

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WE ADVISE people to change habits very lightly. "You ought to give up gold," "You ought to take more exercise," "You ought to walk an hour a day."

"You ought to get to bed by 10 o'clock." Lightly, because we assume that if these things appear to be sensible, people will be able to do them. Often they are not able to do them at all, no matter how sensible they appear to be. In fact, sudden change of habits may do more harm than good, especially among the elderly and in dietary habits. Emphasis of this is found in a recent report of a group of people who had to change their habits on account of the fact that one limb was amputated.

Study of the after effects of amputations in 196 cases showed that the handicap of a congenitally absent or deformed limb is, in many surprisingly easy to overcome. This is well known in institutions for the crippled. When a limb is lost by amputation in youth, the handicap usually is quickly overcome, and the effect on the nervous system of the injury is not often felt in youth. Amputation which takes place in elderly people, however, when the patient is older, shows quite different results. The psychic conditions are different, habits have been too long established.

Mental treatment on the part of the surgeon is thus as important as his surgical skill.

The New York Academy of Medicine recently had an evening's discussion devoted to old age—its symptoms and the treatment of its diseases. In my opinion, the wisest thing which was said there was by a widely known physician, who reminded his audience of the familiar therapeutic fact that changing the habits—dietary or otherwise—of old people is a dangerous proposition. "If an old person has acquired any bad habits, better let him keep them. A little wine for the stomach's sake," he quoted from the Bible (Timothy: 23) "is a valuable thing to keep up if it has been indulged in for some time."

EDITOR'S NOTE: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Relief of the Stomach," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Improvised Altar of
Flowers Adds to
Ceremony

Before an improvised altar of pink and white peonies, hydrangeas and delphinium intermingled with greenery, Miss Mary Rader became the bride of Mr. Thomas Heffner Thursday afternoon.

The ceremony, informal but impressive, was solemnized at the home of the bride's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Horn, Jr., S. Pickaway-st. Rev. F. M. Patterson of the Plain City Presbyterian church officiating.

The bride was charming in a white chiffon princess gown, ankle length, fashioned with a flared skirt and high neck line. The silk lace collar stood high in the back with tiny buttons trimming the bodice to the waist line. The large puff sleeves were long with deep tight cuffs which came to a point over the hands. A three quarter length veil of silk net, cap style, was trimmed with a wreath of orange blossoms at the neck. She carried an arm bouquet of blue delphinium, white plox and sweet peas.

They were unattended.

Nuptial music was played by Mrs. Ralph Boggs, preceding the ceremony.

The bride is a daughter of the late Smiley and Essie Riley Rader. She was graduated from Pickaway-twp high school, attended Ohio State university and for the last three years has been teaching in the Washington-twp school.

Mr. Heffner, the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Heffner, Washington-twp, is a graduate of the Washington-twp school and is extensively engaged in farming.

For traveling the bride chose a knit sport costume in egg shell with gaberdine coat and accessories to match.

Relatives and friends attending the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Heffner, Miss Nettie Rader, Mrs. Cora Hood, Mr. and Mrs. Ward Riley, Columbus; Miss Gladys Rader, Mrs. B. H. Frank Fay to Present Ripley, Irene Bordoni

Fibber and World's Most Truthful Man to Vie for Honors;
Major Bowes' Birthday Sunday

Frank Fay started his guest star policy with one guest last week. This week in his broadcast tonight he will have two—Bob Ripley, the "Believe It or Not" expert, and Irene Bordoni.

The meeting between Fay the Fibber and the Most Truthful Man in the World threatens fireworks of a kind never before heard on the airwaves simply because these two never met before on the same program. It is being quietly rumored along Radio Row that Fay the Fibber deliberately coined his new title, Fay the Fibber, to startle the "Believe It or Not" king when they come to the microphone. It promises to be a battle royal—the Fibber vs. the man who has been called a liar more than anyone else—yet never told one.

Irene Bordoni tramped with Frank in the days when the Palace Theatre was the top rung of the vaudeville ladder and they played in the same bill time after time. In this appearance as a "Frank Fay Calling" guest, in the broadcast over a WJZ-NBC at 7:30 p. m. (EST) she'll sing several of the songs which she made famous.

Bobby Dolan's orchestra has been selected to play the music for these programs.

FLAG DAY MAJOR'S BIRTHDAY

June 14 is Flag Day, it's Major Bowes' birthday and it's also a Sunday which means that the Major won't have much time for a celebration.

Next Sunday night on his birthday the Major will dedicate his Amateur Hour to Oakland, Cal., which is just across the bay from his native San Francisco. Listeners there will have a chance to vote by telephone during the broadcast over a WJZ-NBC network from 7 to 8 p. m. (EST) and the half hour following. The number is Oakland 1120.

Although it wasn't her birthday, a lonesome girl in Buffalo got a happy surprise last week from the Major. She was Fay Santley, who asked Major Bowes for a chance because she was lonesome for her husband Bill who was traveling in one of the Major's vaudeville units. Now she has won a job for herself.

This week she joins Unit No. 7 which is playing the Oriental Theatre in Chicago the early part of the week and the Hartman Theatre in Columbus, Ohio, starting Friday. The really happy part of the story however is that Bill Santley is a member of this same company.

YOUNG MENTAL MARVEL

ON RIPLEY'S PROGRAM

A three-year-old mental marvel will be Bob Ripley's live "Believe It or Not" guest in the broadcast Sunday, June 14. The youngster, who can name among other things all the Presidents of the United States with the chief events in their lives, is Mary Ann Mullica, of 3675 Hudson Boulevard, Jersey City New Jersey.

Mary Ann will be examined by

Ripley during a microphone interview and answer questions generally considered far beyond the capacity of a three-year-old child. Besides knowing all about the President, the little Jersey City girl can tell you what the capital of any country in the world is, name the members of the United States Supreme Court, all the kings, queens, dictators and elected officials who rule the world, and is the master of a miscellany of other information, some of which she will demonstrate in the broadcast Sunday night.

Music for this program, to be heard over a WJZ-NBC network at 6:30 p. m. (EST), will be provided by Ozzie Nelson's orchestra with Ozzie and Harriet Hilliard in solos and duets.

TRIAL SCENE STAGED IN ONE MAN'S FAMILY

The setting of One Man's Family will be transferred from the peace and quiet of their San Francisco home to a courtroom for the broadcast on Wednesday, June 17, as the Spencer divorce trial gets under way. This dramatic episode in the weekly chronicle of the Barbour family will be broadcast over a WJZ-NBC network at 7 p. m. (EST).

Phillip Spencer is suing his wife, the former Beth Holly, for divorce, naming Paul Barbour as co-respondent. At one time all the members of the Barbour family expected Paul and Beth to be married but instead she married Phillip Spencer. The match turned out unhappily, Beth and Paul renewed their friendship and now their relationship is being dragged through the mud of a divorce action.

Called to the witness stand in this episode is Teddy, Paul's adopted daughter, who is twelve years old. She has been called as a witness against Beth by Phillip Spencer and it is on the child's testimony that the outcome of the trial turns.

Why . . . Most Shoes Don't Fit

If you say "I wear a 5½ C" that covers the length, and width of ball of foot. But how about waist, instep, and heel? Those vary in every foot, yet most shoe merchants pay little or no attention to these points when fitting feet.

If you are having any kind of foot trouble—We would like to give you foot comfort by fitting your feet with the correct size of the proper shoe.
